YODELS FROM THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST by Les and Virginia Wille

The Sept. 27, 1964 Tacoma K. C. show was moved to larger quarters. This was greatly appreciated by the exhibitors.

Mr. Elbert E. Vary judged 14 Basenjis (5 dogs, 9 bitches).

TINAS COMA CHEERLEADER, owned by Tinas Coma Kennels, gaited his way to RD.

Out of the American-bred class stepped V. Wille's WILLE DJOSON OF SHARON MAPLES to take WD, BW and BOB for five points.

RB was awarded to TINAS COMA JNK JEN-NAPER owned by Tinas Coma Kennels.

TINAS COMA CAT'S PAJAMAS, owned by Tinas Coma Kennels, came out of Bred by Exhibitor class to win WB and BOS for five points.

It is interesting to note that neither WD nor WB came from the open classes, and more so for the WB, as there were seven bitches in the open class.

This little girl, "P.J.," as she is affectionately called, is bounding her way to stardom. This was just her third time in the ring. The first was at the Mt. Baker K. C. show where she took first in the puppy, 6 - 9 mo. class. Her second show adventure was at the Bell Vernon K. C. fun match where she stole the spotlight with BOB and a Group second.

If there be a moral to this story, it's don't under estimate the value of puppy matches. They are the ideal way to put "show legs" under that young prospect of yours.

INTRODUCING YOUR VETERINARIAN TO THE BASENJI

Dr. Robert P. Knowles has a small-animal practice in Miami, Fla., 1946 to present. Has taught as Research Instructor, Dept. of Bio-chemistry, University of Miami School of Medicine 1958-1959; Research Instructor, Dept. of Experimental Surgery, University of Miami School of Medicine since 1959. Is the author of numerous articles in Veterinarian Medicine; Professional Editor of the Small Animal Clinician and member of the Editorial Board of the Southern Veterinarian. Received Gaines award "Veterinarian of the Year" 1963-1964.

... Editor

by Robert P. Knowles, D.V.M.

This may strike you as a strange subject, but from the standpoint of one veterinarian who was, fortunately, properly "introduced" to the Basenji, it is not only sensible but highly desirable.

You may ask why is an introduction necessary and how do I go about it? First of all your veterinarian, unless he is a rare exception, doesn't see many Basenjis. He sees mostly poodles, cockers, boxers, dobermans, german shepherds, and plenty of mixed breed dogs - but few Basenjis.

Secondly he may misinterpret that direct look which all Basenjis possess as unfriendliness. If he happens to see those hackles rise - he is sure he is dealing with a mean dog! Veterinarians-(me included) feel funny about mean dogs. They spend most of their daylight, (and a goodly share of night hours too) administrating to pets. For the most part, they love and are kind and considerate of them. They have the subconscious feeling that pets should appreciate their knowledge and efforts in their behalf. When a dog actively resents our administrations he is offending our pride (likely with neither the dog nor the veterinarian realizing it.) In this situation - since most veterinarians believe in discipline for dogs, force may be used. This rarely seems to be the proper approach to the barkless dog. It is very important that your veterinarian realize that here is a dog which must not be "hurried" - a calm, quiet approach - and some friendly reassuring words may well spell the difference between a patient who is willing and receptive or one who is forever recalcitrant.

Important also, is the fact that this dog may not respond demonstratively. Willing acceptance, as contrasted to active resistance, may be as far as the Basenji may be willing to go.

Thirdly, the Basenji is in many ways, "different" from the average dog. This is a ticklish point. Most dog owners feel that their dog is truly "different" from all other dogs. I feel the same way about the pointer dog, "Jake", who accompanies me wherever I go. This is a matter of understandable pride and is part of the joy of owning a dog. In actuality, the differences that are apparent to the owner, disappear when Joe, or Sally or Pierre arrives at the animal hospital. To the veterinarian, he appears basically like a thousand other dogs he's seen - with possibly some slightly different breed characteristics. So, your veterinarian has heard the story before, - "my dog is different" - this will be one of those rare times when it is true! - and he won't be prepared for it! Some of the differences which are pertinent to the proper care of the Basenji are:

1. Annual instead of semi-annual estrus. Unless your veterinarian is aware of this (and I assure you - all he has heard about Basenjis is that they don't bark and he doesn't quite believe this), the urgency of your breeding request will be misinterpreted.

2. Since he may accept that they don't bark, prepare him for their other vocalizing.
3. Their habit of cat-like licking automatically places them in a category apart from other dogs in the matter of insecticide usage.
4. Since the Basenji has been bred as a pet for a relatively short period of time, it is entirely possible that their resistance to diseases of domesticated dogs may not compare to that of breeds which have been established for longer periods of time.

As an owner, it is wise to take your Basenji to your veterinarian as soon as possible after acquisition. I would call and make a specific appointment (even if he doesn't ordinarily make them - he will be complimented by your attempt to make a specific time arrangement). This will alert him to the "special" aspects of your visit. Introduce him to your pet - "visit" with him about breeding intentions, parasites and immunity. Follow his advice regarding immunity and feeding. Feel free to ask questions and enter into the discussion. If you can, establish a solid, "this is a man I can rely on" relationship. If you cannot - if he is unresponsive to this type of sincere request - I would look for another veterinarian.

Basenji owners make good clients, and no veterinarian has more good clients than he has room for. Your veterinarian has knowledge of dogs and unless you approach this first visit carefully he may resent "being told" about Basenjis. The key is to approach him with the thought that your special knowledge of the breed and the veterinarian's skill and knowledge of medicine as applied to dogs will help both of you administer more effectively to your pet.

One last thought, although it is "beyond the call of duty" the book, "Basenji" by Veronica Tudor-Williams is an excellent source of information to your veterinarian. If you can arrange to get this into his hands it will be mutually beneficial. One of my Basenji clients kindly xeroxed a copy for me, this was the culmination of a gentle but thoroughly interesting introduction to the Basenji.

COVER STORY

On the cover, AM. & CAN. CH. GLAMOUR GIRL OF THE CONGO is shown winning the Group at the Vernon and District Kennel Club show, Vernon, B.C., Canada on July 3, 1964 under Judge Vincent G. Perry.

One of the top-winning Basenji bitches for 1964, "Glam" completed her Canadian championship in five straight shows by taking two Group Firsts. Sparsely shown, she has 12 bests of breed and 8 group placings, including 3 Group Firsts, in the U.S. and Canada and has 1 CC toward her Mexican Championship. Sired by Eng. Ch. Fulafuture of the Congo ex Jingle of the Congo. "Glam" will be bred to Ch. Fulafaun of the Congo this fall.

EASTERN SPECIALTY

The Eastern Specialty was held October 3, 1964, in conjunction with the Devon Dog Show, which is one of the larger Eastern prestige shows, held just outside Philadelphia at Devon, Pa. This is a benched show, held outdoors and what started as a very chilly morning, turned into a lovely, warm autumn day, as the Basenjis began their trek into the ring at 10:00 A. M.

The trophy table, laden with silver, glittered in the sun.

The rings were large and even classes of 12 to 14 did not seem crowded. Thanks to the efforts of Herman and Shirley Genth, the benches were decorated with fancy placards bearing the name of the dog and owner. The show had been given much publicity by the Philadelphia papers and as a result there were quite a number of spectators at ringside.

Mr. Hartley had evidently studied our Standard quite thoroughly, as he knew exactly what he was looking for and gave each of the entries a good going over. He was most consistent in his placings and each winner was a well chosen representative of the breed.

Chosen Winners Dog from 19 dogs entered, was the winner of the Open Dog Class, Luddymarie's Dapper Dan, owned by Luddymarie Kennels. This is a very striking dog, quite high on the leg and with exceptional good movement that was most impressive.

Reserve Winners Dog was the winner of the Puppy Dog Class, Khajah's Black Fula Challenge, owned by Shirley Chambers. Challenge is a very sound dog who needs a little more maturing to really be in shape. He was kept from showing all summer due to an eye injury, and gave a good showing at this his first show. Most outstanding is his color - black and white, which was very well received by both the judge and the spectators.

There was a large entry of bitches, 27 in all. The competition was very keen and Mr. Hartley had a difficult time in choosing who should be in the ribbons, as many fine specimens had to be left out. Winners Bitch was the Open Bitch Winner, Khajah's Gay Melda, owned by James and Grace Hamilton. Her combination of a very short back and beautiful arched neck, coupled with a free flowing tireless gait, made her a deserving winner. She was also chosen BW.

Reserve Winners Bitch, 2nd in Open, was Luddymarid's Merry Madcap, owned by Ross Newmann. Litter sister of Winners Dog, she too has the same good movement, together with a lovely topline and is a credit to her breeder and owner.

CH. FERUZI OF THE ZANDE

(by Ch. Reveille Recruit x Ch. Asali of the Zande)
Shown going BOB at East. Spec., Judge, Mr. Heywood R. Hartley, Handler, Damara Bolte' Owners, Betsy & Ross Newmann, Potomac, Md. "Massi" has 33 BOB's since March 15, 1964
Breeder, Marvin G. Wallis

The Veterans Class had a large entry of 7 and it gave extreme pleasure to watch these old-timers in the ring, who were very spry and fit as if they had been campaigned all year. Several of the top winning dogs of previous years were in this class and the eventual winner was Ch. Bettina's Oribi, owned by Bettina Belmont Ward. Oribi, the BOB winner last year, from this class still shows his top form and condition.

The BOW Bitch, the Winner of the Veterans Class and the Specials present, totaled 14 in the ring, from which Mr. Hartley was to choose his final winner. After most careful deliberation, he chose as Best of Breed, the handsome Ch. Feruzi of the Zande, owned by Ross and Elizabeth Newmann, and expertly handled by Damara Bolte'. Feruzi, who was well deserving of this win, bares an amazing resemblance to his famous sire, Ch. Reveille Recruit, who was twice BOB at the Eastern Specialty. Feruzi, a real show-

MIDWEST SPECIALTY

A total of 60 Basenjis, consisting of 15 dogs, 24 bitches, 3 veterans and 18 specials were present at the Midwest Specialty Show, held October 11, 1964 at Evansville, Indiana.

Many exhibitors had the pleasure of attending the dinner, meeting at the Holiday Inn the evening before the show and conversation flowed into the late hours.

Through the efforts of the Specialty Chairman, Gwen Stanich and her co-workers, a large and impressive collection of trophies greeted the eyes of Basenjis and their owners. At 1:00 P.M. an afternoon of judging began with Mrs. W. C. Edmiston doing the honors.

For her Winners Dog Mrs. Edmiston chose the Open Dog Class Winner, Mikioi O Apelika, owned by Mr. & Mrs. George Hart. "Mikioi," a native of Hawaii, is a very handsome lad with excellent bone structure. He is quite tall but very well put together.

RW was 2nd in Open, Griggs Bronze Sammy, owned by Aubry W.

From a very large and exceedingly good bitch entry the Open bitch class Winner was Niari of Hills Half Acre, owned by Minnie K. & Francis L. Hill, was selected Winners Bitch. "Nari" has that very deep, deep red color, deep brisket and overall soundness.

Reserve Winners bitch was the very typey Puppy Class winner, Cinjola Sahli Pepette, owned by John W. Barker.

The dog was awarded Best of Winners.

The Veterans Class was won by the well-known Ch. Bettina's Oribi, whose gait and drive still make him a tough one to beat.

WESTERN SPECIALTY

Fabulous, glamorous Las Vegas was the site for the Western Specialty this year. Most of us arrived early on Saturday morning and went straight to the Baghdad Inn, where reservations had been made for all Basenjites. Rooms occupied by Basenjites were marked by cut-outs of the breed -- take-home souvenirs.

The Exhibit Hall, part of the gigantic Las Vegas Convention Centre, was the show ground -- over two acres of concrete floor. Eight conformation rings and three obedience rings took up only the center of this, leaving plenty of space for crates, grooming tables, etc. This air-conditioned hall was open Saturday evening and some of us left dogs there overnight. We were even allowed to leave our trucks, buses, etc. in the area set aside for "Basenjites only," during the show. This special corner was only a few steps from the show ring.

Saturday evening the Judges Dinner was held at the fantastic Sahara Hotel, with tables set aside for Basenji owners only. Our tables were designated by a character drawing of a very smug Basenji -- in his tummy was one whole lion. After the dinner we had the use of a smaller room where the drawing for the door prizes was held and the movies of the Liberian black and whites were shown. The black and white sire of the puppies (red dam and a mixed Sunday dawned bright and early -- a quick breakfast, then over to the Exhibit Hall where the first thing to catch our eyes was the stupendous display of all-silver trophies. The three tables groaned under the weight. Lithographs and silver dollars on blue velvet with a silver frame, were displayed on easels.

Decorations consisted of puppy cut-outs around the trophy tables, spears and for the center-piece, a wonderful framed picture (30" by 40") of five puppies, lent to us by Kodak.

Judging time arrived. An air of expectancy -- the Bongos and Piccolo start up, playing softly, and into the ring prance three male puppies. The beat reaches a crescendo as places are awarded. This is only a beginning. Class

OBSERVATIONS OF BASENJI COAT COLOR

LEON C. STANDIFER

In Liberia we could distinguish about three general strains of Basenjites. Within these strains there was still more variation, and our group of interested owners were constantly involved in a selective breeding program. At the same time, we all attempted to study the genetics of various traits. This was extremely difficult because we were continually adding native lines in which we had to rely entirely on phenotype.

The only studied character which appeared to be simple and not quantitative was coat color. We felt that it was controlled by a single pair of genes with black dominant to red. In our Liberian breedings, a black x red cross usually gave a 3:1 ratio of black to red. (To my knowledge no tri-colors were ever produced and we did not see or hear of any in the country.) This would be a classic Mendelian ratio of single gene complete dominance. After returning to the United States and discussing the problem with Geneticists, I began to doubt our concept of complete dominance; and the recent red Fula line crosses which produced blacks supported the doubts. Modern Geneticists are concluding that very few characters follow the simple Mendelian ratios, so I would like to suggest the following possible means of coat color inheritance.

It seems probable that the Basenji coat color must be produced by a multi-gene complex with black lacking complete dominance (i.e., having incomplete dominance). As an arbitrary case, suppose that the color is due to three gene pairs which we will label A, B, and C. Further suppose that to be black a Basenji must carry one dominant in each gene pair. The other component of the pair could be either dominant or recessive without affecting the color. Thus Aa Bb Cc, AA BB CC, Aa BB Cc and a few other combinations would all give black phenotypes; all that is needed is one dominant in each gene pair.

In this type of inheritance pattern, then, all all other gene combinations would be red: Aa Bb cc, AA bb CC, aa bb cc, etc. As long as one gene pair lack a dominant, the result is a red coat color.

Then theoretically, a red AA Bb cc crossed with a black AA BB CC would yield black progeny in a 3:1 ratio of black to red. This would explain our observations in Liberia which we interpreted as simple complete dominance. The two matings of red American Basenjites into our Kiki line have have followed this ratio.

Using the same scheme, a red Aa Bb cc crossed with a red aa bb Cc could produce black offspring (genotype Aa Bb Cc). The ratios from such a cross would be 7 red to 1 black. Possibly this is how the blacks were produced in the Fula line crosses.

Again using this same scheme, it would be possible to cross a red AA BB cc and a red Aa Bb cc and get no blacks at all. Perhaps this explains why no blacks occurred before the Kiki and Fula lines were introduced.

All the above postulations are probably over simplified. For instance, there may be 4 or more gene pairs involved instead of 3 and this would considerably reduce all of the above frequencies. These schemes are offered for comments and criticisms by persons with more experience in Basenji breeding.

In Liberia we also attempted to study the genetics of the bark, but learned little except that it seems quantitative. We avoided dogs which had an "appreciable bark," but since no one knew where the line was drawn between a "woof" and a "bark," decisions were difficult. I now realize that our standards on this point were not as critical as those of Basenji breeders here.

Our selections for bone structure and general conformation were rather good, partly because these characters were easily recognized. All of the Liberian lines are long in the loin, but not having other lines for comparison, most of us did not realize this.

The curl of the tail was always a problem; the tails in the Liberian strains seldom curled as tightly as we would have liked. As I mentioned before, the tail is of little importance to the native who sometimes docks it altogether. An interesting commentary on this fact can be seen on a Liberian postage stamp issued for the 1960 Olympic Games. Pictured on the stamp is a typical native hunter with his typical country dog man, has the quality of a real winner.

From the 7 bitches present in the ring, Mr. Hartley chose for Best Opposite Sex, his Winners Bitch, Khajah's Gay Melda, again complimenting her for her overall substance and quality.

Last, but not forgotten, into the ring went the Brace Class, consisting of three attractive braces, two of which were tri-colors. The winners of this class were the well known father-daughter brace of Luddymarie Kennels, Ch. Black Zeus of the River and Ch. Luddymarie's Black Angel.

After photos were taken and congratulations were offered, everyone gathered at a reserved cottage on the grounds, where they were afforded a delicious, and as the noon hour was well past a well received buffet luncheon.

Many thanks are directed to David Hill, Eastern Chairman and his staff for a well organized show that was thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed by all attending. Also a note of thanks to the judge, Mr. Heywood Hartley for his most conscientious job of judging and to the many exhibitors who traveled from both far and near to make this one of the most successful Specialties yet where quality and sportsmanship reigned supreme.

- a beautiful Basenji, but a nearly straight tail.

In comparing the Liberian Basenjis with the Basenji in America, there is a noticeable difference in temperament. The Liberian dog seems more relaxed, docile and easily trained. Oddly enough, this may be related to a legal characteristic of the tribal Liberian. Most natives enjoy legal "palaver" and will sue their neighbor at the slightest provocation. A dog which chases the neighbors chickens or snaps at the children can cost the owner several months wages. So here again the native system of selection comes into play - they eat the dogs that won't mind. Perhaps the true reason for this difference in temperament is more complex. Lawsuits, as a common practice, seem to have reached the tribal areas only in the last generation; although they may have been developing along with the nationalistic movement for about 60 years. This may not have been enough time to develop such a trait in the dogs; it may only have been a factor in maintaining it.

I should point out that none of these remarks is strongly significant genetically. They represent observations of possibly 50 or 60 specimens at the most and seldom from repeated matings. To establish validity, we should have a minimum of 100 individuals from the same mating. Of course this is a virtual impossibility with Basenjis, requiring about 20 repeated matings, but the validity could be increased by observations from 3 or 4 repeated matings.

TRAVELING WITH YOUR BASENJIS

GEORGE C. JONES, III

You may do well to consider your Basenjis when you are next contemplating the purchase of a new automobile, not only from a standpoint of the body style, but also, some thought should be given to the many options and accessories that are offered by all automobile manufacturers, which will greatly add to your traveling pleasure, to say nothing of the Basenjis'. Many of these options can be classed as necessities, while others fall into the category of luxuries, and how they are categorized - luxury or necessity - is strictly a matter of opinion.

First of all, anyone who travels to any great extent, attending Dog Shows regularly, will tell you that a Station Wagon is the only logical choice as far as body style is concerned. I don't think anyone in the South will disagree with me when I say that factory air conditioning is an absolute necessity, as well as tinted glass in all windows, which greatly reduces the penetrating heat rays of the sun. In addition to this, many "dog people" use the Kaiser Shade Screens which are manufactured by The Sidles Manufacturing Company in Temple, Texas. These are particularly nice when it is necessary to leave your dogs crated when the wagon is parked. The shade screens allow absolutely no sunlight to enter, provided of course that these are used in all windows. These in no way interfere with the operation of the side windows, nor the power tailgate glass.

A chrome luggage carrier makes an ideal place for carrying an exercise pen or collapsed wire crates, or for that matter, anything that will crowd the cargo area.

Most motels have no objection to registering guests traveling with dogs, but should you ever run into any difficulty, and find that a particular motel flatly refuses to accept dogs, you can be sure that it is for a good reason, and more than likely it is because of a bad experience the motel operator encountered by accepting guests with dogs. On the other hand, there are certain states which have laws prohibiting dogs in motel rooms.

Whenever it becomes necessary to leave your dogs alone in the motel, make sure they are crated, or if you allow them the freedom of your home, then it is alright to let them run loose, if you are certain they will do no damage. When you leave the room, turn on the radio or television set. This will keep the dogs from feeling completely alone, and they will settle down much more quickly.

As 1964 draws to a close, three notable firsts worth mentioning are:

- 1) The Topless Bathing Suit.
- 2) The Discotheque. (these popping up in New York, Atlanta, Miami, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco).
- 3) The first Black and White (not to be confused with Tri-Color) Basenji whelped in the United States. No particular connection between the three, but "firsts" do cover a rather broad scope.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS!

selecting just one dog from such a collection. After serious deliberation, Ch. Khajah's Gay Fula Cadet, a fast rising star in Basenjidom was chosen BOB. This elegant youngster, just 10 months old, is a credit to the breed. He has an excellent topline and rear, including tail and tail set, and is a superb showman. (see Cadet's picture on page 3)

Best of Opposite Sex was John Barker's Ch. Goose's Wildrose. A very nice bitch, who despite being nearly six years of age, is in top condition.

The Stud Dog Class was won by Ch. Phemister's Gold Baton, owned by Mr. & Mrs. T.

L. Brewer. Although not yet two years old, this proud papa already has several top winning youngsters to his credit.

The Brood Bitch Class was won by Ch. Redwing of Rancho Rest, owned by Dr. F. R. & Sylvia Stoughton, a gorgeous typey five year old.

So another Specialty was now history - some were pleased, others disappointed, but all things considered, there was an excellent selection of winners from an outstanding group of Basenjis. And, even though one's own dog perhaps was not one of the day's winners, one could well be proud of those chosen to represent the breed that we love so well.

...I just wanted to write and thank you for the good job you did with our little guy's picture in your Current Contender section of the November issue of The Basenji and also to give you the results of a fun match held in Boulder, Colo. where our boy went Best in Match.

All Breed Fun Match, 10/4/64

Judge: Miss Dolores Maltz
BB-First in Hound Group AND BEST IN MATCH, BWANA AKERS' SOLEMN PROMISE, owned by Earl and Diane Laue.

We were very interested in hearing of your experiment with breeding in the morning to avoid those nasty midnight whelpings. Keep up the good work and let's hope your experiment proves to be a good one.

We are really enjoying our copy of The Basenji and every issue gets even better, if that is possible....

Editor's Note:

Yes, we have bred our bitches in the early morning now for several seasons and we now whelp our puppies early in the evening and not after midnight. We'd like to hear if anyone else has tried this plan.

From Phyllis M. Cook
(Hon. Sec.) Basenji Club of Great Britain

I was very interested in the September issue of The Basenji, particularly in the photographs which seem to show that the breed in America is drawing much closer to the ideal of "a lightly-boned dog high on the leg compared with its length," lighter bone and finer fronts seem to me a great improvement on photos of a few years back. But where are the deep briskets running up into a well-defined waist? These are such an essential feature of the breed--and indeed of any running dog--but only two at the bottom on the inside of the back page--seem to have any brisket at all.

May I also point out to Mr. Norman Wallace that he is using the word "brindle" when he means "sable" or "shaded red." We seem to have eliminated completely this undesirable coat colour in England but the true brindle--black stripes on a red ground--makes up about 25% of the Basenji population in the Sudan. As this colouring appears to be a dominant, there is no chance of breeding it unless we have at least one true brindle Basenji. Another unfortunate colour that has recently turned up here is a tri-colour that lacks the tan cheeks and lozenges above the eyes and has only a little tan behind the ears and on the back legs to show it is not a true black-and-white. This colouring, too, I feel should be considered a fault. (These are my views, not necessarily those of the Club).

..I would like to offer my services concerning any news I come across here on the West Coast. Though I am a small breeder (four Basenjis) I do make quite a number of shows, and as I get to know more people perhaps, if you would like, I can pass on any news that I receive. I am wishing you the best of luck with your magazine and am very glad to see that at last someone has decided to publish such a magazine devoted entirely to Basenjis. It is a worthwhile endeavor and fully deserves to succeed. I hope that you will publish something about the Black and Whites. ..After all, when something new occurs on the scene, it deserves to be heard about. It seems that almost the only thing printed after the birth of the Khajah Kennel's

From Mrs. Howard L. Moses Seattle, Washington

Last September while in Los Angeles, I met Mrs. Helene Vaughan, who had Kokocrater Kennels in Honolulu. Thought you might be interested in how she bought Kindu and Kasenyi. In 1940, Lt. Vaughan sent Helene to the mainland to buy two Doberman Pinschers--one was to be a breed female, and a male, so he could start Kokocrater. Helene saw Kindu and Kasenyi and a puppy in California. She threw aside her husband's wishes and bought the three dogs for $300. When they arrived in Honolulu, they were held in quarantine for 120 days and that was an additional $300. The natives called them Poi dogs, which to them means mongrel, but it was used here as an expression of love. The Islands took Basenjis to their hearts and Lt. Vaughan, needless to say, recovered from Dobermans. Kindu was hit by a car and killed but Kasenyi died of old age. Lt. Vaughan was taken very quickly with a heart attack about 1958, and Helene closed Kokocrater. She is now in Rolling Hills, California, with two of her beloved Basenjis--Bongo and Tapi. It was quite a thrill to hold the A.K.C. registrations for Kindu and Kasenyi, dated 1940, to Lt. and Mrs. Vaughan.

Articles . . . about the top winning dogs of the past - their pedigrees; information about litter-mates, their get, their owners, etc. Maybe the leading kennels would submit a story about their "top dog."

Articles by "newcomers" (breeders and individual owners) as well as the "oldtimers" telling us how they first became interested in the breed.

Pictures of the early U.S. Basenjis. Many people have never seen Veronica Tudor-Williams book and have never seen photos of Kindu, Kasenyi, Wau, Kingolo, etc. Continue the series to include the top winners and producers of recent years so new owners will learn more about the names which appear on the pedigrees of their Basenjis.

Stories of the well known kennel names, what they mean, and how they came into existence.

Reports from the new local breed clubs--what they are doing, matches scheduled, etc. . .

paces in the group ring, under judge, Mr. Shuttleworth. "Moja's" fluid movement is beautiful to see. First place to a Basset--then second to this outstanding Basenji! A fitting ending to a marvelous week-end.

Many, many thanks are due to Judy and Fred Webb for arranging this show. Their hard work over the past months resulted in a wonderful Specialty that went without a hitch.

Words cannot be found to thank Silver K. C. They bent over backwards to fulfil our requests and to see that everything went according to plan.

Thanks are also due to Rose Marie Palmgren (door prizes); Lloyd Curlee (MC at the get together after dinner); Bonnie and Bud Harp (reservations for the motel and dinner); Robin Griffiths (motel door markers); Gwen Stanich (for the loan of the movies); Anne and Andy Logan (for decorations); and to the numerous others who lent a hand when needed. Thanks also go to all the exhibitors who supported this Fifth Western Specialty. Our thanks too to Silver State member, Jane Wolfinger, without who's help, it could not have been.

Judges Comments - Dogs

9 - 12 mo., Cambria's Jomami - Exceptional puppy with great potential. Beautiful crest of neck.

Am. Bred, WD-BW, Cambria's Ti-Kumba of Kazor- Good neck and feet, very clean looking. Open: Coptokin Crusaders Imp. Very good movement and handled nicely.

Bitches

9-12 mo., Tanda's Autumn Fairy - Very typical of the breed. Good quality and very alert. Novice: Princi Shanagolden of Vah-Ki. Good feet and movement, nice wrinkle with expression.

Bred by Ex., Tanda's Autumn Fancy- Had best movement in the class.

Open, WB, Bee-Jac's Filigree- Good muzzle and movement. Exceptionally nice over all.

RB, Cambria's Galla- Very good expression. BOB & BOS, Ch. Congo's Moja of Cambria and Ch. Bee-Jac's Fantasy- Both very typical of the breed. Gazelle like.

Obedience, Two entries in Novice B, Fulafrown of the Congo took the obedience trophy.

HINTS

TOENAILS AND DEWCLAWS

Cut the toenails of the young puppies from the time they are a week old. Keep doing this every week and they will not fight it when they are older. Too, by doing this they cannot scratch the dam's breasts so much.

DEWCLAWS

So many times the novice does not know the dewclaws on the Basenji puppies should be taken off. This should be done to prevent danger of the claws catching on some object thus tearing them loose. Also it makes a neater looking leg.

BE (AU) JABBERS

Merry Christmas from us all
And especially from Me
And may your Joy be warm and bright
As candles on your tree.

And one more Wish I send to You
And to your little Hound--
That when you take him in the Ring
He'll win his class paws down.
