GREEN DAYS IN FORESTS AND BLUE DAYS AT SEA

SOME MEMORIES OF THE TRIP TO THE SOUTHERN SUDAN

by Veronica Tudor-Williams

Sitting in the Embarkation Sheds at Liverpool, eyeing our fellow passengers who ranged from white to light brown, yellow, dark brown, black and ebony black and who proved to be interesting and charming.

A bad storm in the Bay of Biscay, and John wedging himself into his bunk with three life-jackets, which he hastily removed before the steward called him in the morning.

Watching the dolphins rubbing themselves against the bows of the ship in the Mediterranean, and then playing in the spray.

The dawn over the Suez Canal and talking to the Russian Pilot, who spoke perfect English, whilst taking the ship through.

Khartoum, with the temperature 120 degrees and the air strip like a blast furnace. At the Grand Hotel the edges of the glasses were hot, as though with tea instead of iced beer. Hot water ran out of the cold taps and nothing ran out of the hot taps. And the charge was L4 a day.

Arriving in the Southern Sudan and finding it a narrow strip of quite different vegetation to the rest of the Sudan, it was aglow with flowers, birds and butterflies; the butterflies were mostly swallowtails and the most fascinating bird was called, as far as I remember, the Bird of Paradise flycatcher--- it was a black bird, with a long forked tail of snowy white.

The magic moment, when after several days traveling, we arrived in the district where, many years ago, I had been told we would find Basenjis. We did, the natives came out to greet us, carrying long-legged, fine boned, really typical Basenjis.

Another never-to-be-forgotten moment when Michael called me in the early dawn, telling me to hurry. We jumped in the Land Rover and went rattling and lurching flat out down a jungle path. We arrived at a little clearing right in the forest where we saw a few native huts. We got out and waited, then three tiger-striped Basenjis walked into view. All I could think was that they looked just like the Red Indians in war paint of our story books, slipping silently and arrogantly out of the forest.

The best moment of all, when I took possession of the 8 week old Fula, early Sunday morning, May 12th, just as Michael came out of the forest carrying Marry, another 8 week old puppy. We sprayed them with flea powder and got in the Land Rover. A few minutes later we looked down and our legs were black with fleas, which had left the puppies and taken refuge on us.

That night we stayed at the Catholic Mission, and Fula, only in my possession 12 hours, was suffering from dysentery. When I opened my bedroom door, she disappeared into the night and I had visions of having to rouse John, Michael, and the Holy Fathers for a search party. But first I took my torch, and shining it on my feet because of the snakes, I began looking for her. I found her on the only patch of grass about 200 yards away. By then she had done what she wished to do, and again disappeared into the darkness. But I was getting smart to Fula and went and looked in my room to find her curled up on my slippers because she was not big enough to get on the bed.

The day when the jolting of the Land Rover over the African "roads" upset John's liver, made Michael and the two dog puppies car-sick and Fula and I in the pink, looked at the four sorry bodies and said, "Men."

The terrible moment when a fish eagle dived out of the sky, we all rushed forward and if it had not missed Fula by inches, it would either have carried her off, or torn her with its beak and claws probably beyond recovery.

The night before we returned to civilization and took all our remaining stores, bully beef, beans, jam and tinned fruit and made it into a wonderful curry, which we ate by the camp fire.

THE RECIPE FOR MAKING A BASENJI CHAMPION

by Barbara J. Nolan

Now that I have told you theoretically how to rear a puppy and how to care for his emotional needs, I would like to impart some words of wisdom from an expert in the field of training champion Basenjis.

To begin with, as I have stated many times, but can never repeat too often, the Basenji pups must be of good hereditary stock. One can never make a $1000 show champion from a $25. pup.

At the tender age of three weeks, we first start on the road to a well groomed dog. This is the first time the nails can be clipped and should be clipped weekly thereafter to maintain good feet and toes. This point in grooming cannot be over-emphasized.

In the next two weeks fondle the Basenji puppies as this is one of their emotional growing periods. When they reach four weeks of age begin their temporary shots and have them checked for parasites. (See your veterinarian about this, if you haven't already done so.) This also is a good time to begin the house-training episode - everyone has their own recipe for this but the one used by many successful breeders is as follows:

Keep the puppies corralled in a fairly large area - don't give the freedom of the house, especially the room with wall-to-wall carpeting. This room should have an outside door for quick exit purposes. Paper train the pups at first and after they have had the first puppy shot, they can go outdoors, weather permitting.

Four weeks of age is also about the right time to begin with collar training. This does not mean a chain or leather collar but a light weight strip of cloth with no dangling or trip-em-up loose ends. They will probably be chewed up in short periods of time and the strips of cloth are much easier and less expensive than English leather collars. After the pups have had their collars on for a week or so, take them out by themselves, away from other dogs and people on a lightweight show lead. This will be a slow process at first but with patience and diligence and only about five minutes a day you will be on the way to making a good show dog. If this is done for too long a period, the puppy and you will get tired - so train in short periods but do it consistently and always remember to praise the puppy.

Now for the next big step - which seems to be one of the characteristics of a Basenji - and I have noticed cartoons and funny articles on Basenjis chewing up the house, but when you have raised several Basenjis that have done this, it isn't very funny or amusing. I thought that it would be cheaper to have a professional trainer than to do it yourself but I was reassured by an experienced breeder that with a little self-discipline and a lot of patience and diligence one could master the feat by himself with the aid of his family and all his friends. So this is how I am going to raise a show dog - one who

. . . At the Arizona State Fair on Wednesday, November 11, The Obedience School, which we attend gave a thirty minute demonstration on stage before the grandstands. The Basenji that participated was, TAVARIA NA'JI, bitch, owned by Bud and Bonnie Harp of Phoenix. "Ginger" got her first leg on her C.D. at the Phoenix Field and Obedience Trial the 23rd of Oct. We would have had "Frownie" and "Dandy" there also but my working out of town at that time, prevented it. Judy will show "Dandy" (Coptokin Andana, C.D.) this spring in Open and I will show "Frownie" (Fulafrown of the Congo) in Novice.
. . . I will write an article or two about local happenings and our obedience work as soon as I get accustomed to this cast. . . (I fell down a flight of stairs at work and broke my right thumb last Saturday and have a cast from my hand to the elbow.) If you don't mind getting a left-handed article from a right guy????
. . . Will have to wear the cast until the first of the year. (Thank goodness for electric typewriters.)

.... For next year's Eastern Specialty, I have selected my committee as follows: Damara Bolte, Irwin Katz, Marianne Grybinski, and Minnie Hill.

Feruzi finished his 1964 season this last weekend with BOB wins at both Philadelphia and Camden. He has thirty-six for the year.

.... May I congratulate you on the December number. It's terrific.

From Anne Logan

. . . I took "Fancy" and Frances Husbands took a male to one of the Junior High Schools last Tuesday. The teacher had seen us at a Sanctioned Match and as they were studying Africa in geography he asked if we would take them over to the school. Another teacher had the book, "Good-bye My Lady," brought to his attention in his English class.

We showed the dogs to four different classes - about 135 pupils. The teachers were surprised at the interest the children displayed. Constant questions until the bell rang for the end of each period.

We took the set of four lithographs with us, pictures of puppies from birth to the "grown up look." Also handed each child a leaflet telling about history, characteristics etc.

We thoroughly enjoyed the day and hope it did some good as far as the promotion of the breed is concerned. One of the older boys took pictures and if they are any good the principal will try to get one in the local paper.

Well, I have to train Fancy and her brother. I have a mirror leaning against the fence so that I can see how they look from a judge's viewpoint when stacked. They both know they must stand still. Am now working on not breaking their gait and keeping their heads up on a loose leash. Both are doing real well, but still want to sniff the ground at times.

.... Does everybody really remove those delightful whiskers, and all of them, before showing, as Mr. George Jones suggested in the November issue? I simply cannot believe it--nor the hair inside the ears, and the chalk--really!! A Basenji freshly bathed is dazzling white. To an outsider this seems very artificial and very unnecessary. I think Mr. Jones is very kind to share all his secrets, but I dislike the whole idea very much. It makes me think of what has been done to "the loved ones." No unkindness intended, dear Mrs. Hill, I suppose it's all in the eye of the beholder, what is beautiful and what is not. It's very interesting to read all the contribu-

'SOUTHERN EXPOSURE'

NIP IT IN THE BUD

by George C. Jones, III

Ask several people whom you consider to be authorities on Basenjis, to offer some advice on the importance of crate training and lead breaking, and while the suggestions you get will undoubtedly differ in phraseology, in so many words, all of them will stress, I am sure, the importance of beginning any phase of training at just as early an age as possible.

Whether you plan to show your Basenji or not, a crate (I recommend the Kennel-Aire) can be a wonderful convenience whenever it becomes necessary to leave your dog unattended, and if properly trained, he will look upon the crate as his home, and will go into it of his own volition, and won't feel as though he is being punished when the door is fastened. However, don't expect a mature dog who has had no training to adjust immediately to the confines of such close quarters as a crate. You are certain to hear screams of protest, followed by a look from a languid eye, so much as to say, "What have I done to deserve this?" So to avoid this anguish on the Basenji's part, begin his training just as early as possible - six weeks of age isn't too soon, and the earlier, the better. The simplest method would of course be to take the young pup, close him up inside the crate, and walk away. But, take heed - this is definitely the wrong approach, and it will never, never work satisfactorily. You might begin by leaving the door of the crate open at all times. Make a bed on the inside for him and you might put a couple of his favorite toys in also, or anything that will entice the pup to enter. Let him come and go as he pleases for a few days, and don't close the door behind him the first time he goes into the crate. Wait until he becomes completely acclimated, then you probably won't have any trouble when the crate door is secured. You may even be surprised at how much your pup enjoys his crate - a refuge for him when he doesn't feel up to facing the problems of the world.

Similarly, lead breaking should present no problems if started soon enough. Begin by putting a makeshift collar on the pup. A piece of fabric or a shoelace will work fine - anything to get him used to the feeling of having something around his neck. He may give you a little "conversation" at first, but after a few days, he will not even be conscious of the fact that the collar is there. After he has become accustomed to the collar, then attach the lead, such as a Resco Show Lead which is very light weight. I do not recommend a chain type collar or lead, as they are much too heavy and serve no particular purpose. The first attempts to get the pup to walk are likely to be unsuccessful, as he will surely try and break away or buck the lead. But, with a little patience and understanding on your part, success is inevitable. Training periods should never be extensive or prolonged, and when you see indications of the pup's tiring, that's the time to stop.

To all of you Yankees wishing to get away from that cold, bleak, biting weather, why not come to Florida for the January Circuit, and some real fun in the sun. Snow is alright I guess, but as for me, I'll take a palm tree any old time.

tions and I cherish my copies. You really do a handsome job of editing.

Also, why is the Basenji brindle under AKC rules different from Boxer brindles, etc., and different from Webster's definition? (Note Mr. George Gilkey, November issue). Isn't there a scientific definition of a brindle? Brindles--real ones--were rare in the Congo. I saw only two of them in the village we knew best, our village, but so were three-colours. Would it not be an enrichment of the breed if real brindles could be imported and bred? They could be extremely handsome. All for now. - With affectionate thoughts to you and all Basenji-lovers.

From Lois M. Cooper
Fairbanks, Alaska

.... Here is something that happened at our last dog show, November 1, in Anchorage.

A friend of mine was trying to calm down my unhappily crated Basenji who was telling the world how unfair it was to be crated when there was so much excitement going on. A lady spectator wandered by and asked, "What kind of dog is that?" My friend told her it was a barkless Basenji. The lady said, "Well, she certainly does hum nice!"

Our cold weather is here and it is a relief to be able to let my Basenji run loose and know she will not run off. In fact, she goes only about two feet from the front door to do her business, and is right back scratching at the door. We have about 13 inches of new snow and she does not like the snow at all.

Her favorite spot is curled up with "Ruggles," my huge Standard Poodle. When I take them out, "Dilly" tries to stay as close to him as possible for warmth. Once a day, I make her stay out until she goes, or she will hold it for as long as four days. "Ruggles" is a huge 26-inch tall boy and he just loves the snow, the deeper the better. So poor "Dilly" is torn between trying to follow him through the deep snow, which she doesn't wet the wall to wall carpet and who doesn't chew up the house and who doesn't carry his toys and blankets to his master's bed.

.... I'd very much like to receive two extra copies of the December issue of The Basenji. We just purchased a truly beautiful bitch from Anne Logan. ... Her picture will be in this issue so naturally I must have a couple of extra copies to send our families. We're just so proud and happy with her. May I say, while I'm at it, I have only one complaint regarding this wonderful new magazine--IT ISN'T ENOUGH! I read it immediately and, all too soon, I'm finished. I know the size of the issues depends greatly on the information sent in by its readers, and I do hope to have something to contribute in future issues, if only an ad! But I would like to offer my services and if there is any way I can be of help, please feel free to call on me. We attend all the shows here in the Northwest (until last month without a Basenji) and hope to invade Canada next spring. Wishing you and The Basenji much success in the future. All of us here in Washington are very, very pleased with it, and am sure it's the same throughout the country.

To help prevent - I use the word "help" here because no theory except for a mathematical one is absolute - to prevent the house from being demolished by a Basenji, instead of the usual termites, is to supplement the chewing diet with lots of toys, hard rubber balls, leather tug toys and Nylabones or other treated bones. The experts in the field - who have aptly proven this with many litters because their house still stands - say not to give all the toys to the children, I mean puppies, at one time because they become bored with the same ones. Keep rotating the toys to keep up the interest in the toys and not the furniture. When they leave their toys and start for the expensive goods - tell them in a serious but stern voice,

"No," and if you don't get the response the first time tell them again and this time with a light rap across the nose and at the same time hand them a toy to chew on.

Remember not to laugh at their cute antics because they love to entertain you and this will always cause discipline to go to 'rack and ruin. Basenjies love to entertain you but laugh with them, not at them.

To train a show dog isn't really difficult but it takes a lot of patience and diligence. This must all be carried out in a program of continuity and consistency.

YODELS FROM THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST by Barbara Fay

The Whidbey Island K.C. show, held at Marysville, Washington on November 15, 1964, was a huge success, despite the cold weather. Approximately 827 dogs were entered, including 10 Basenjis. (4 dogs, 6 bitches.) Judged by Mr. Raymond H. Beale.

WD-BOS went to MERLEA DANCING RED MADRINGAL, owned by Margaret Robertson. (3 Pts.) This was "Marty's" first American show, and I'm told he finished his Can. Ch., in October - 1964.

RD went to JNK JEFFERSON, owned by Kathy and Mrs. Betty Holt.

WB-BW and BB went to TINAS COMA OUI-MAC AOKAY, a lovely tri-color, owned by Mae and Norm Wallace of Tinas Coma Kennels, Reg. (4 Pts.)

RB was won by TANDA'S AUTUMN FAIRY, owned by (me,) Barbara Fay and Anne Logan. There's lots I'd like to say about "Fairy," but since she's partly mine, shall just say that this was her first show here and is the first of the "Fula" bloodlines in this area. (Of course, we're simply smitten with her.)

Due to the large entry, we were quite late in being judged, but this gave us the opportunity to visit and chat with our good friends from Canada, Margaret Robertson and Bob Patchell. We're always happy to see our Canadian neighbors at the shows.

As you've probably already noticed, this is my first attempt at writing this column. Les and Virginia Wille are leaving for Salem, Ore., soon after the holidays. I'm sure I speak for all the Basenjites here, when I say how sad we are to see them leave. They are two of the nicest, friendliest people it's been my good fortune to meet in a show ring and their "good-sportmanship" is unexcelled. One bright spot, Salem isn't too far away and we hope to see them occasionally, and hear from them often. We all wish you the very best of luck and say, "We'll surely miss you."

Would also like to extend and invitation to all those with news of interest to this column. Mail to: Barbara J. Fay, 16508 58th Place W. Edmonds, Washington 98020. Would like hearing from you.

Editors note - We too, would like to thank Les and Virginia Wille very much for this column in the past months and we are grateful that we have Barbara Fay to carry on with it and an excellent job she is doing too.

HEADS OR TALES

THERE'S A BASENJI IN THE HOUSE
(Namely "Fairy")

by Barbara Fay

Behold! My little imp of red
Has run to hide beneath my bed,
Because her rug's been torn to shreds.
"Who dun it?"

A stocking here, a paper there,
Under the sofa, behind a chair,
Bits and pieces. She wouldn't dare do that!
"She's no pack-rat!"

She knows we love her, even though
She's sometimes scolded, and told No!
"Get off the sideboard! Look out below!"
"Well, there goes dinner!"

At shows she's such a sight to see,
And prances 'bout so daintily,
It won't be long before she'll be our
"first Champ!"

She does have manners, and it's true,
Displays them, when folks come to view.
I am so proud of her, I do believe
"She's trying!"

Curl up and sleep now, little Mutt,
With one eye open, one eye shut and smiling.
I know you're thinking what to do now,
"BOW WOW!!!"

"SHUT UP OR CHORTLE!!!"

LISTENING TO BOARDERS

Chuck McGahee

Last week, along came a man
With two dogs to leave - if he can!
We said, "Yes."
You can guess.

Three days and nights here they've been.
We are wondering how long it takes to build a pen
To house two dogs to hunt a bird
Why didn't he get Basenjis?
My word!!

PUTTING ON THE DOG

Durban, South Africa, Nov. 17, 1964 (UPI)

A dog owner who wrote to a Durban hotel requesting reservations for him and his pet received the following acknowledgement from the manager:

"I have been in the hotel business for 30 years and never have I had to eject a disorderly dog. Never has a dog set fire to a bed. Never has a dog stolen a towel or a blanket. Your dog is very welcome. If he will vouch for you, you can come along as well."

EVERGREEN BASENJI CLUB NOTES

by Mrs. Brad Lowe

A new Basenji Club in the state of Washington area is being formed. Our meeting, October 25, 1964, was held at Tinas Coma Kennels in Burlington. The Club was named, "Evergreen Basenji Club." Those attending had a tour of Tinas Coma Kennels, a lovely buffet dinner and then a business meeting. We wrote and approved constitution and by-laws and sent them off to be approved. We will have about 30 charter members.

Next meeting will be held, November 22 in Edmonds, Washington, to elect officers, collect dues and discuss plans for a Futurity Match in the spring.

TRAVELING WITH YOUR PET BASENJI

Alma S. Birnn

As it happens, when our Basenji, "Cheri," travels with us, we are traveling with our trailer. However, she always rides in the car with us. This for two or three reasons - First, she would be frightened out of her skin to be confined to a trailer in transit (alone) and Second, we know when she needs a drink or a walk. We take her water dish in the car and when necessary we fill it from our own thermos jug of cool water. This is especially important in hot weather.

However, this suggestion still holds good for those who travel with car only. In such a case I would suggest taking the water dish and food dish to which the dog is accustomed. Also a supply of food which the dog likes, and don't forget the can opener. If your dog likes Gainesburgers, fine; however they have a tendency to induce constipation in our dog, although she loves them. She does not like milk and cares little for water unless it is cool and (a) she has been exercising or (b) the weather is hot. She adores cottage cheese and this seems to counter-act any incipient constipation.

She was whelped and raised in Florida so we always take along an old army blanket for her to sleep on. (We've tried wrapping her in it, but she squirms out, not liking to be covered). However, lying on wool seems to give her warmth. In visiting cold climates, she wears a sweater or coat... again, because she is only accustomed to warmth.

When staying at hotels or motels, take the dog's bed if he is used to sleeping in one. Otherwise, take an old jacket or something of the sort, bearing the scent of the owner. It will keep the dog off the floor, off the bed and furniture and provide a sense of the owner's returning in case the dog must be left alone.

TROSAMBE'S ANIAK

Shown going BB under Judge, Mr. W. Pym at the BCOA supported Alaska KC show, 11/1/64 This lovely daughter of Ch. Tinas Coma Top Hit x McKee's Barbara of Silver Fox, came from the BE class to take 5 pts at her very first show

Handled by Breeder-Owner, Sam McKee
Anchorage, Alaska

If visiting Canada, be sure your dog has all shots and the Veterinarian's certificate attesting to the fact. The certificate should be dated as near departure time as possible. Have your ownership papers with you and, above all, be sure your dog is wearing some sort of identification tag in case he strays. Keeping the dog on leash is the safest measure whenever you are away from home.

In regard to dogs riding or traveling in cars, I wish some one would design a safety belt or harness for dogs. Enough leeway so they could see out the windows but not enough to jump out should they see another dog with which they wish to get acquainted. It would also prevent the dog leaping from seat to seat; sometimes distracting the driver dangerously. It would also permit the dog to be left in a parked car with the windows open wider for more air.
