Basenjis Do!

Yeah, that’s my son just in the ring
And there’s my daughter too –
Their first time out and full of bounce.
To see what they can do.
Just wait until, through rain and cold
And breasting sun as well,
They’ve bumped in crates, on rutty roads
For miles that I could tell.
They’ll wish they’d stayed at home with
And never seen a show;
But if I owned the purest true
It’s this – I’d love to go.

"Honey" and "Dear"

Am. Basenji Club of Great Britain

"Are we going to enter her, dear?"

"Oh, I don't know, honey. You know how absolutely awful she looks right now. Maybe we should just sell her."

"She could make up to $1,000. All of the money will be spent on her!"

"Pf! You just who do they think they are? Sell me! Nobody sells me! If they think they picked me from my litter on their own, they're crazier than I thought."

I saw them coming that day and I picked them out myself as the perfect pair, I spent fifteen minutes cleaning off my white, all that the hair in my mouth is really horrible but no matter what I still get myself to just grin these shoes looking too. Looked like a bloody Bankett, I didn't think that snow job was about the tips in my career."

"I canats who could ask for a better deal? Nice soft sofa, and those pillows, ah-h-h, what better comfort is there?"

"And at night I get my back up against "Dear" and absolutely "Honey" right over the edge. (Honey doesn't think much of my goodness.)"

The mud, I eat better than they do. Got to keep in show condition, tra-la. Honey has this absolutely landscaped yard in back (out over a hundred dollars on a fence for little lil' mud)."

"Actually, I should say "bad" a landscaped yard. I fixed that though. I must admit the taste of hot tub leaves something to be desired, and I suffered tremendous pain from unaccustomed grass under my paws, all of which made a perfect goal for the rose bushes, but I must make sacrifices sometimes, don't you agree? Honey doesn't like to look at all that plain grass out there now, and I could fix that for him too, and I will if he doesn't watch how he talks about me.

I have lots of amusement too - there's "Shred-the-paper-de-the-dastrophe-basket," and "Crows-off-the-buckles-off-the-new-Swedish-Modern," and "Strip-the-towel-racks." (Dear likes that one, I counted seven times she had to go up."

"Anyway, he moved him back, there's also "Shred-the-standig-rh-rost," "Dirty-up-the-window-with-rose-paints," and "Run-the-cat-during-a-social-gathering." Best one of all is the "Indoor-Honey.""

"This one is pretty flexible, but my one ailment is leading him a merry chase through the neighborhood, leaping all over anything, and herooing the wall-to-wall carpeting upstairs when it's wet or cold outside."

"Well, they don't have to buy wood, you know, there are more practical ways to keep the carpet."
The Ethics of Puppy Selling

by MAXWELL KIDDE

from Dog World, July 1966

As a dog writer who sits within reach of the telephone at the "Cleveland Press," I am constantly being consulted on all sorts of problems connected with the buying and selling of puppies. Some of these problems are connected in one way or another with the ethics of breeding and selling puppies.

In other years, the bulk of the questions I have answered have been about point breeding, or merely to give advice and instructions, dealt with these subjects:

"I've just bought a puppy from the pop home and two days or a week later, it became sick. What is the seller's responsibility?"

"What recourse does the buyer have if he pays a huge veterinary bill?"

"Has he any recourse if the pup dies soon after he gets it?"

"The AKC dog. The advertisement in the newspaper said the pups were 'AKC.' Or alternatively, 'pedigreed,' which is a way of indicating that the dog is registered, or can be. Now the buyer has a legal right to demand registration papers, or even an application to register a puppy from a registered litter."

What recourse does the buyer have? Can he get his money back? Can he get a refund of part of the purchase price? Can he force the breeder to take back the dog?

Today, a whole new series of problems has arisen. They stem in part from a major policy of the American Kennel Club, the AKC. The AKC has decided that a judge need not require a judge to disqualify dogs with only one sterile descended (embryonic) or with neither descended (embryonic). Hip dysplasia has now become a major crippling disease in dogs that grow up relatively healthy in those weighing more than 25 pounds. But patella dislocations in Dogs thus have become more common. Hip dysplasia seems to have joined the parade. Formerly it was seen only in German Shepherds, and whether or not the breeders have been to severe shoulder strains.

In recent years, I am informed, there have been reports of some breeds suffering from tenderness in the hip joint. Many of them have been successfully treated by surgery. The American Kennel Club requires that the complete chain of ownership be known and that the hip dysplasia be a factor in determining the name of the new owner. This is, in general, the rule. We should all leave the space in which we should have included the new name of the owner.

The American Kennel Club requires that a dog's name be a registered trademark for its registration certificate.

One or more of the successful owners may have failed to endorse the papers, or may have signed the certificate, but not included the name of the new owner. This is, in general, the rule. We should all leave the space in which we should have included the new name of the owner.

Hey, that's Mom and Dad. Hi, folks! Surprised to see me?

I'll say, we thought you'd never make it.

Cool yourself, kiddo, when I was your age I was finished and was your mother already.

So I talk to understanding people on my hands.

How you talk to your mother, young lady, we're not no people, you may have noticed.

The Great European import, my father. You know I've been hearing some very nasty rumors about you - to the tune of how obedient and well mannered you are. It's getting so I can barely hold my head up in public. And they're expecting some such behavior from me.

Don't fret, kid, my handler started the whole thing, there's not a word of truth in it - just wait until I get home again.

Oh, I get the idea - keeps guessing, doesn't it? I'll have to file that little gem for future reference.

Never thought the little hints you learned at your daddy's knee. Better straighten up, I see your mother, if you'll excuse the expression, I mean owner coming this way - you see later, good luck!

Oh my, he's right, I'd better not relax. Buy, are they super right or what? They're trying not to show it though - after all the price they charged for them, they're probably relieved. Not that Dear would trade me in, but I sure don't trust Honey.

For my record, her head's on, now ever so gracefully off the bench. So that's a judge! Oh, someone should buy me some such creature, I would love it. Probably likes Poodles. Uh-oh, that's the one Dear was carrying.

Like my type, I hope he didn't see my expression - well, I don't like the ring either. How could they let them cross in front. Hey, they've almost hitting each other, Pretty good! Dear hasn't noticed yet, better pull back on the lead. Hey, she's won almost all the time. Work your head, Honey. Ariel, you want it that way, I'll argue - almost pulled her off her feet, great!

We're stopping - she's going to get me up! I see, she's in line. Here comes the judge - bend down, now (I move mine, it looks like a row if I try. Smooth out that last wrinkle. He's right in front of me. I'll drop my belly down, snug-in that back - I think I can keep up. Take it all. Break. Lead. Tighten. Hey, don't bend it, Dear. Hey, stop. (continued on page 9)

The Third Annual Fan Match of the Greater Chicago Basenji Club (formerly Royal Scabri Basenji Club) was held on June 18, 1966, at the home of Bill and Joyce Boehm in Northbrook. The sky was sunny and warm and the home has big side trees, and sweet-smelling pines.

The match started with the last year's "Dog Pond" game. Everyone was invited to play to the tune of "Old Macdonald." This game was organized last year and is played in the old dog pen. Yvonne with the difference being that the dogs pick out "dogs" presents themselves. Some of the presents are scented and the first item the dog smells or touches, he has. This is sometimes quite a riot with the Basenjis.

Next on the schedule was the obedience Trial. We were more pleased as we have seven entered. The top score was earned by Harold Allred's ERCOCHI's ELDON HUNTER. Second highest score was won by Dr. Donn McCraken's THETFORD'S TWENTY TIMES. Carol Nolting's ERCOCHI'S ELETHA was third, and fourth was the Sweet Ch. ERCOCHI'S SWEET ECHO OF FLAME.

Before the Conformation classes, we had a demonstration on the proper way to show a dog. Then Judge John Crummer took over his assignment of judging the classes. First in Puppie Dog Class 4 (2-8 mo.) was ROYAL KIP of GOEGR, owned by Roger Kipers. First in Puppie Bitch Class 4 (2-8 mo.) and Best Puppy Dog, was Don and Mary Halbert's FULLA FRESCA OF THE CONGO, Bitch of Opposite Sex to Best in Match was ROYAL KIP of GOEGR.

Best Adult in Match also went to the hardline with their LEAH'S BRADY BOY, it was quite a day for them.

Best of Opposite Sex to Best adult was the Sweety KENN'S SWEET RED SPARROW.

Following this, came Junior Showmanship, This year.

Linda Gershe, of Los Angeles, California, gained the "ten years and under" class was won by Linda Loebus. In the "eleven years and over" class, the winner was Venus Lattanwile. Trophy and gifts were given to all the Junior stalkers.

about little stuff. She appreciated them:

"Why don't you put her on the lead and just see, Honey, sometimes they can change so fast, and I do hate to give up on her."

"You could try, Dear, but don't expect too much. I'm going to work the Collie. I'm going to get that last leg on her U.S., I know, she's working so well." So that ridiculous automation is going to be that show. Well, the day is set, and I am alone again. I'll take care of that! Is my lead on? OK, it's give Dear a thrill! Here we go - feet up, prance, prance, Hey, wait a minute, show down, your head, you've earned it! I'm going to be the judge, they wrote the standard, I didn't."

We're getting fairly - head up, ears forward, wrinkles, ... oh, perfect. Now, stomach in, chest out, back nice and level. Tail over a little farther to the left. Now, tighten up that ear - tighter, tighter, Oops, almost get a cramp in it. Am I all right? No, hind legs out a bit more, (slightly shortens up my back.) Now, freeze! Give her that proper, good tight, Oh! Thank you."

"Oh Honey, come over here and look at her. She's just perfect.

"Whatever you say, Dear," "I'm going to enter her, Honey, I just know if we waited long enough."

"Don't turn out all at once."

"Dear, whatever you say, Dear, I'm busy right now with the Collie."

"Oh!"

Well, it's finally the day of the show, I've really had to knock myself out these last few weeks. Dear got her head into it well, not much effort on my part, I barely had enough energy left to reduce that infernal cramp to splinters. Wonder how good old Honey liked spending the entire night on the bed, (I'd better not get used to it!)

What a noisy place, all this yapping and carrying on! How much better it would be - all quiet - you know, don't you have to choke me, I can keep my head up myself. Do that to your mindless Collie, Honey, my boy, I haven't noticed you yapping that much, ever."

"What's this, Honey? You really don't dislike me, don't you. You expect me to sit down on that cold hard bench? You've got to be kidding, I can sit all day if you want me to."

"If you change your little habit, with a happy blanket - how utterly divine! Tuck it around me, sweetness, this is going to be the highlight of my career."

Be sure to check out the section on California Crucible. It discusses the value of using local sources for livestock and how the practice has evolved over time. The author emphasizes the importance of utilizing indigenous breeds to reduce the carbon footprint of livestock production. They also mention the potential benefits of traditional farming practices, such as rotational grazing and crop rotation, which can improve soil health and biodiversity. The section ends with a call to action for readers to support local farmers and support the conservation of native breeds.

We are also introducing a new section called "Honey and Dear" that features stories of everyday heroes from around the world. This month, we feature a story about a young man who started a business to help his community. He now runs a successful beekeeping operation and provides honey and other bee products to local residents. The story highlights the importance of small businesses in building strong communities and creating economic opportunities. We encourage readers to support local businesses and to recognize the contributions of entrepreneurs in their communities.

Finally, we continue our series on "Horse Racing: The Sport of Kings." This month, we profile a historic race that took place in the early 1900s in New York City. The race was considered one of the most important of its time and featured some of the greatest thoroughbreds in history. The story includes quotes from legendary horse trainer and jockey, who provides insights into the training and racing strategies of the era. We hope you enjoy this month's issue and that you find it informative and engaging.
SOMNAMBULISM

The Basenji is a breed of dog known for its unique behaviors, including somnambulism. This phenomenon, which is not fully understood, involves the dog leaving the house while asleep and then returning home later, often unharmed. The Basenji's somnambulism has been a topic of interest and speculation among dog owners and researchers, who are left to wonder the nature of this mysterious behavior.

Published recently in a reputable veterinary journal, the study on Basenji somnambulism revealed several key findings. Firstly, the dogs were found to exhibit this behavior predominantly during the night, with a peak incidence occurring between 3 AM and 5 AM. Secondly, the dogs' behavior was not linked to any identifiable environmental factors, such as changes in lighting or noise levels. Finally, the dogs' somnambulism did not appear to be linked to any underlying health conditions.

The implications of these findings are significant, as they suggest that Basenji somnambulism may be a genetic trait. Further research is needed to understand the underlying causes and to develop strategies to mitigate this behavior. Until then, Basenji owners are advised to take precautions to ensure the safety of their pets while they sleep.

by Archie Smith, E. Route 2, Box 341V, Brunswick, Florida 32516

This being a new column, how about all you "kids" writing me and telling me what kind of "lit" you like to read about. We'll try to include as many of you had jokes in bitter dog handler kennels this summer? I would be stoked to hear of your experiences.

This month we'll have a "Fun and Contest" section and next month let's device it "A New Hampshire Summer." Would you believe a startus! Basciou?

I'm now at raising Baschiou, also, we had to trade in a new pontoon for a baby pup. Any of you Junior's would like to write a guest column, send your letters and news to me, include new address above.

Three weeks later, the puppy developed red mange. The veterinarian told the owner that the dog probably was born with it. The breeder said he had not had a case of red mange in his kennels. Neither the owners nor the veterinarian said what caused the problem. We would not naturally hesitate to take back the puppy even as a gift. We didn't want the infected puppy to pass on the disease to other dogs in the kennel. But was he responsible for this case? Should he have reduced his price, or the purchase price? Should he have paid the veterinary bills?

The breeder who had complicated the matter by saying that red mange was difficult, and sometimes impossible to cure. He was also out of line by saying that the puppy was probably born with red mange. Perhaps it was. Behave you, and could be, no proof of this.

But the problem of responsibility still remains. In my own mind, we should have made some education, for this reason. It is difficult to feel sorry for dogs with red mange usually the level of their health is below par. So it could be said, that however stupid a breeder had sold a puppy whose health was below normal.

Breeder with hip dysplasia may become so crippled that meretricious death must be given him before he is a year old. As a rule, he would become lame enough to be disqualified in the show ring, and hip dysplasia should disqualify him or her for breeding.

Dysplasia of the hips can be disorbered by x-rays when puppies are five to six weeks old. If they are going to develop it, x-rays will show it before they are four to six or seven months old. After that age, if they haven't got it, they won't get it.

Wherein lies the breeder's responsibility? At the above-mentioned Vermont show, we were startled to hear this argument advanced: The buyer wanted a healthy, happy puppy. The breeder received a dysplastic dog. The injury after the naio was made, the buyer hasn't received what was promised.

This seems like a harsh and unfair position to take when it is remembered that the buyer knew the exact facts before, at least, a break down.

Moreover, the breeder may have known of great risk of hip dysplasia, and has seen x-rays before the mating was set. Perhaps he may have not been the puppy as promised.

If he has said this, we have sold, he has been honest in not misrepresenting the damage and size x-rays before the mating was set. Perhaps he may have not been the puppy as promised.

The case of a dozen cases, people have told me that their dogs have been lamed by hip dysplasia and that this has been the breeder's responsibility and by no means. They have complained, the breeders have never or haven't had the disease in their kennels and, of course, they have refused to do anything about it.

This is only half the problem, so far as both breeder and puppy-laver are concerned. The breeder may have replaced the dog, but feel they are not obligated to do so. Consequently, they believe it no more than the party in the best way in offering another puppy.

The puppy-owner, however, will be (continued on page 14)

UMBLICAL HERNIAS

Mrs. Janet E. Brooks, 10676 Creek Road, Ojai Calif. 93023

I would like other breeders' opinions on umbral classifications, especially that hole-hilling which ranks the growth of any litter of Baschiou pups. The back yard is a serious menace and I feel strongly recomended a law against seven against any fosk sashdeep dogs in the world. I have lost the fight to make the back yard presentable. The only solution seems to be the whole world with a crunching bond.

I remarked once that the 1 1/2 month old pups were sleeping all night without waking or making noise in their screened cage. This was an elegant fallacy for me. I remember for almost a month after the six week period, urgent screams rent the night air at 2 A.M. and I was suddenly in the godforsaken door to the run. Now (at three months cild) the pups are again sleeping through the night incident.

KEIKO & RA KAMA RC. The puppy last Sunday seems a fitting tribute to his dead one-eyed mother, Pики. She could never been shown with that single black, beautiful, shining eye but she left her mark of quality on this only son. It was too long a day for judging for the boys we picked him up at Pearl Harbor at 5 A.M. and group judging wasn't until 7 that afternoon. KEIKO & RA KAMA RC. by the way is Hawaiian for "Son of a One-Eye!"

Frank and I saw "Born Free" not long ago, I wonder how many Baschiou thought that our breed isn't half destructive, after watching those lion cubs around the house.

The American Kennel Club is rescheduling AUKALELE O NUKA (a unidentified flying object of New York) to my brother and sister-in-law, Emma is the only airline flying directly to New York, taking the risk of trying to route the plane any other way. The departure isn't crucial, but the crate is ready, the plane is ready, the owner arrives on New Year.

Do you know what the four grown dogs and four munching on great grasses and some others ones at the commissary, and though we are not originally from the South, Martie Hau of Kentuckiana brought us to fried catfish and hush puppies two years ago while visiting her, never thought I'd be eating them in Hawaii.

THE BASCHIEN CLUB OF DALLAS

"DALLAS TWIST" by Joy Robertson

Sally Barker hosted our July 9th meeting. This was Sally's party as president and she did very well. First we had our business meeting, discussing our planned Fun Match and the Texas Kennel Club Fun Match in August.

Glen and Betty Hargis showed out her SHERWdds PHRAHOS and BETSY BOSS JOHNNY-REBEL and offered a prize to the person who could most correctly fault the dogs, however, there were few to be found.

We talked about finding our own dogs and finding the good dogs as well as the bad points before taking them into the show ring.

At our third Fun Match, July 22nd, we had a turnover of 15 dogs which wasn't considered being so many as we have in previous matches. Mr. A. C. Powell of Fort Worth judged our match. Best of Breed was won by RA KAMA REGALI and it took the Best of Opposite Sex over SEAJO'S MARILY.

We are looking forward to our August 5th dinner meeting - hope to see many Baschiou there.

ALOV IS FROM HAWAII by Dorothy Cowens

For weeks there seemed nothing to report except the inevitable endless red mange. Some days a new show season is subject discussed in "The Baschiou" and since it seemed to be a problem, I would like more information on it. I have had more than two writers, Tudor-Williams has wrote to you, and would like more detailed and recent information.

Anybody willing to send information regarding this subject may send it to me, I would much appreciate it - either via this magazine or write to me at the above address. Thank you very much.

CURLY TALES FROM THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS by Karl & Diane Luey

The fall shows will soon be here and everyone in this area is anxious to get back in the ring with their new crop of puppies. In preparation of the upcoming Colorado Kennel Club show on September 18, a Sanctioned Match was held on August 7. Ruth Johnson's CH. BILLIE LADY made away with a winning score in obedience. There were 12 entries in conformation. First in Puppy Class and Best of Breed was won by Sandy Topp's SABRINA. Adult Best of Breed was won by Ruth Rocky's PEARL OF THE CORSO. Ruth in a newcomer to our area and we hope we will see her at all of our "doggy" activities.

The following was sent by Sandra Topol, and it is most interesting to read about the new All-Basehiou Obedience Class. There is 14 in this class and everyone agrees that this must be a First in Baschiou History.

Our very capable and excellent instructor is Terence F. W., professional handler and field dog trainer. Our class began on June 15, and will run for nine weeks, whereupon graduation will be held. Many of the Baschiou will then try to obtain the coveted C.D. for their dogs.

The success in obedience training these smart, unusual dogs is due to somewhat different methods of training in what is usually given other breeds. One thing which seems to stand out is the fact that each Baschiou seems to look at the others in the class as if what he or she is doing is a personal insult. One gets the impression that each dog does not want to be the "worst" and consequently tries mightily to avoid the competition. This makes for a great class, but makes the instructor's job quite individually? Stay tuned for the next episode of the Rocky Mountain Baschiou Training Clinic, (unofficial)
