CH. KENDENE'S SWEET RUSTARINO, 1963 Midwest Specialty Best of Breed and Group 3 Winner at the ripe old age of ten months from the Bred by Exhibitor class. Sixty-seven dogs in competition, under Judge Mr. Elbert E. Vary - group judge, Mr. Rutledge Gilliland. This was the largest entry of Basenjis in the area up to this time. What a round of applause when we went into the ring for the group judging. It would really thrill your heart to hear it. There hasn't been a Midwest Specialty since to even come close to this one. Gwen Stanich and her committee worked like beavers to really make this a great success. The trophy table was huge and loaded, and of all days for everyone to forget their cameras.

"RUSTY" went all the way to his championship from the Bred by Exhibitor class, along with his sister "NINA" (CH. KENDENE'S SWEET NINA FIRE FLI) handled by Berdene Sweet. Although we have only used RUSTY once as stud - a litter of three with two champions to his credit, we expect to use him this fall in our breeding program. His sister NINA has a litter of five - her first, with two champions and a third almost finished and a fourth with points. We are constantly looking for improvement and our biggest aim is quality.

"RUSTY" is one of the sweetest tempered dogs in the country, and to see him promenade in his run, or to watch him race in the yard when a train goes by - there is nothing more beautiful.

Owners/breeders: KENDENE BASENJIS, Clyde K. and Berdene C. Sweet, 11520 Clem Road, Portage, Indiana 46368.

The "Day of the Barbecue" has been and gone but those who were there will remember it for a long time. Minnie and Francis Hill had open house all day as the Basenji judging in Bradenton was at 9 AM. Upon their return home from the show, they were greeted by the first guests. Many had their Basenjis with them and an occasional protest was heard throughout the day.

About mid-afternoon a brief business meeting was held as well as a meeting of the Board of Directors. The Southern B.C.O.A. Specialty in October was the most interesting topic discussed. Juan and Peggy Puente, co-chairmen for the event, said they had received $100 from the B.C.O.A. for the trophy fund and that our goal of $500 was surpassed.

Our club historian, Peggy Grundman, besides keeping a scrapbook on our members and their dogs, has started a card file on available studs complete with pedigrees. This should prove to be a valuable reference for all breeders.

After the meetings, we adjourned to the picnic area of the Hills' back yard. With Bob Grundman as auctioneer, ably assisted by Juan Puente and Chuck McGahee, the hilarious white elephant sale got under way. Most of us haven't laughed so hard for a long time. As predicted, some enthusiastic bidders bought back their own white elephants. Some of these were rewrapped and auctioned again. One package I know was sold at least four times. To add to the confusion, the cooks kept bidding from the kitchen window to run up the price. Agness Wood was heard to remark that she had paid over $3 for something she didn't want. When the bidding was finally finished, and the last elephant was sold, the sale brought in $68.

In the meantime, Francis was presiding at the outdoor grill and the barbecued chickens were ready. A large table held many kinds of salads and relishes and a huge punch bowl was filled with delicious fresh fruit. Coffee and other beverages were plentiful.

Among the late-comers were several handlers who reported on the group winners and best in show. I'm sorry I can't report that it was a Basenji.

When all the tumult and shouting was over, the proceeds had pushed the trophy fund well over the $500 goal and we were a tired but happy gang. Our thanks to Minnie and Francis, the Bob Grundmans, Ann Upchurch, Chris Biegel, also Betty Castle and the Puentes and Betty Hoghland, and all who contributed white elephants and helped make the day a success.

PHYSIOLOGY AND FUNCTIONS OF THE CANINE EYE

The dog's eye, like the human eye, functions in the same fashion as the camera. Light enters the eye through the cornea, passes through the aqueous humor and the pupil to the lens where the light rays are focused upon the retina. A chemical change in the nerve endings of the retina occurs, which in turn starts the nerve message to the brain via the optic nerve. Interference with any part of this chain can produce total or partial blindness. For example, if the optic lobe of the brain is removed, the dog will be totally blind although he may have perfectly normal eyes.

The principle function of the eye lids are to help protect the cornea, aid in drainage of tears, and reduce blurred images by the involuntary act of blinking. The cornea is the transparent foremost part of the eyeball, which initially admits the passage of light through the eye. Pupillary size is controlled by the iris on a reflex basis regulated by the brain to produce the correct amount of light needed for clear vision. The lens approaches optical perfection only at its center. Therefore, light is automatically regulated by the iris to pass through the center of the lens. The lens itself changes its convexity for further clarification of the image projected on the retina. This focusing power of the lens is called accommodation. The accommodation reflex in the dog differs from that of other domestic animals and man, since the pupil dilates for near, rather than contracting, and contracts for distance vision.

The great majority of animals, including the dog, lack binocular vision; that is, they see one object with only one eye at a time. Also, most animals discern movement rather than actually see figures. Most animals are color-blind and see only shades of grey, varying in brightness against a grey background. They rely, instead, upon their keen noses for more detailed direction finding. One of the most important characteristics of the dog's eye is its relative nearsightedness, according to most observers, and it is for this reason that veterinarians rarely need to prescribe glasses or contact lenses for the animals following cataract surgery. Dr. Smythe in "Veterinary Ophthalmology," however, emphatically disagrees with this thesis; he contends that most hunting breeds are slightly farsighted. But, all authors agree that dogs, like all animals, tend to become presbyopic with age. This corresponds to the presbyopia in the human which necessitates the use of reading glasses or bi-focals by the age of forty-five.

If the dog is truly nearsighted to a moderate degree as contended by most veterinary ophthalmologists, this would mean that any object beyond thirteen to twenty inches from the dog's eyes would be seen very blurred, in addition to being entirely without discernable color. This fact would indeed support the visual perception of motion theory, rather than the true visual acuity being present in the dog. However, if Dr. Smythe's contention is correct as he has observed in certain Retrievers, Pointers, and the Greyhound, Saluki, and Afghan, then at least some breeds of dog have quite acute vision. It would be most interesting to know the status of the Basenji's eyes in this regard. The next article in the series will deal with common afflictions and diseases of the canine eye.

PUBLICITY NOTES

Prior to the National Capitol Kennel Club Show, held April 16, I was unable to find any advance publicity about the show. However, the day of the show a small advertisement was run on the sports page of the newspapers, in addition to a bit of radio publicity. On the following Monday, one of the larger newspapers had a by-lined article about the show. The lead

"WAGGING TALES FROM NEW YORK"

by Hazel Ulm, RD #2, Winney Hill Road
Oneonta, New York 13820

Those of you who know me are aware that before I got into Basenjis, my first love was German Shepherds.

When I inquired for my first Basenji I stated that I wanted a breed that was as far removed from hip dysplasia as possible. Now you may be wondering what German Shepherds and HD has to do with Basenjis, but I hope to make my point by using it as an example, so please bear with me.

To explain what HD is in simplified layman's terms - it is when the hip bone of the dog does not fit properly into its socket, thereby leaving a space and creating wear on the hip bone, which in turn may or may not cause the dog to become lame.

HD has been a problem as far back as the 1940's. Not only in German Shepherds, but in many of the large breeds: Boxers, Old English Sheepdogs, and Gordon Setters, just to name a few. The smaller breeds can also be afflicted, but it is not so common. HD research has gone on for as many years.

When Shepherd breeders became aware of the affliction, it was the topic of conversation whenever they got together. As more and more cases were reported, panic set in, so that X-raying all breeding and showstock was a must at one year of age at the earliest. And advertisements offering stud service or puppies for sale, carried the statement, "X-rayed and found clean," or "So and so has been X-rayed." (No mention of the results, merely that the dog had been X-rayed) or "Guaranteed against HD."

There was one serious problem, however, not all veterinarians knew how to take the proper hip X-ray! Any slight movement of the anesthetized dog could create a shadow on the X-ray and was promptly diagnosed as HD.

One by one, as the panic rose, dogs of top quality were put down because of HD, until it was realized how many of their beloved breed has some degree of HD - about 70 to 80 per cent. As this was realized by others, veterinarians in particular, it became a case of "normal for a German Shepherd" and clean hip certificates were issued.

Most Shepherd breeders finally reached the point of considering HD just another fault to contend with. They still X-rayed, but those dogs showing HD in a lesser degree were retained for breeding. Breeders who argued against this procedure refused to have their dogs X-rayed after two years of age by someone like Dr. Leonard at Cornell University for the simple reason that with Dr. Leonard, they either have HD or in his own words, you are either pregnant or you are not - there's no such thing as a little bit.

After 40 years of this problem, they still do not know how to rid the breed of this affliction. For it is an affliction without an answer at present. Perfect hipped parents can, and do throw dysplastic offspring, and dysplastic parents can throw puppies with perfect hips.

Perhaps some of you already know the point I am trying to make in regards to the Basenji and the present eye problem we are faced with. Step by step we are going the way of the German Shepherd breeders. First the realization of the problem; second the examination and the consequent "putting down" and destroying some top quality dogs; thirdly the statements in advertisements of dogs having been examined and found free.

The cause is still guess-work, and different bloodlines will receive blame, the big breeders will be the object of criticism. But since we do not really know the cause of this eye problem, let us, for just a brief second, consider the possibility of this not being a genetic factor. What then? For the sake of argument, just suppose this problem is caused by an infection such as staph? A staph infection is highly contagious. A person or dog can be a carrier without showing any signs of the effects of the infection, but can pass it on to others. Some people, and again dogs, will be more susceptible than others; hence a carrier might not pass it onto those he lives with but to another more susceptible animal coming in contact with the carrier.

Working on this theory, the proper medication could bring the problem under control. Unaided it will continue its way while we grope in the dark.

If it is a genetic factor, we do not know exactly how it works. It is dominate or recessive. If not a pure recessive, as in the case of HD, as stated by Dr. Leonard, how do you expect to control it. If you put down quality dogs based on the genetic theory, why not all the litter mates and parents as well?

We are all in the dark concerning this problem. To ignore it would be criminal to the breed, but to go off half-cocked in a panic, will bring similar results.

We are very sorry to report that Mrs. Herman Genth passed away June 14, 1967. Our sincere sympathy is with Mr. Genth (former B. C. O. A. president) and son Frederic.

BASENJI NOTES

by Veronica Tudor-Williams, Osier Farmhouse Beach Road, Emsworth, Hampshire, England

EXTRACTS FROM "OUR DOGS," ENGLAND, June 16, 1967

As the Dog Press has quoted from the American Journal, "Modern Veterinary Practice," Feb. 1967, which deals with eye problems in dogs, especially Collies and Poodles, and a new problem in Basenjis, "persistent pupillary membranes," I feel I must try to reassure Basenji owners.

This trouble was first noticed in the States as long ago as 1953, and when I was there in 1956, I was shown an afflicted dog. Nothing more was heard of the problem, and I hoped it had been bred out, as other problems such as severe hernias, bad mouths, and cream coloured dogs had been. Although, having been alerted, I was on the watch for it in England.

Last summer I was told of an afflicted puppy, whose owners asked my advice. I told them to take it to the Veterinary College, which they did, and I placed the report before the Basenji Club Committee. In view of the fact that there were no other recorded cases, the Basenji Club felt there was no need for further steps, except that a close watch be kept for any further eye trouble.

Early in 1967, I had a report from America that this trouble had increased, and the report went to the Basenji Club Committee. This time they agreed with me that it was not caused by outside circumstances, such as injury, infra red lamps, inoculations, virus diseases, or any other excuse, and immediate steps have been taken which I think reflects great credit to the Club Committee. The Basenji Club's veterinary surgeon was contacted straight away. She advised Dr. Keith Barnett, who is in charge of the new ophthalmic unit at Cambridge, which is being opened next week. No choice could have been more opportune; Dr. Barnett having recently been in the States, and in touch with Dr. Roberts of California, who has been conducting the research into the eye problem in Basenjis in America. I feel we could not be in better hands.

We were awaiting more detailed information before making any of this public, but the Press has beaten us to it. However, Basenji owners are responding in a wonderful way, and are already asking to have their dogs tested. It seems nothing is being hidden and all want to cooperate for the good of the breed. There are two very heartening factors - one being that from incomplete data, it is hoped that the trouble is caused by a simple autosomal gene - this being far the easiest gene to deal with, and the other makes it especially worthwhile, that although the groundwork is with dogs, the primary interest is that it will help similar eye abnormalities in human beings.

It is hoped that facilities will soon be available for all Basenji eyes to be tested by the few people fully qualified to undertake this very specialised task, and for this our gratitude must go to Miss Cook, who is being a tower of strength in this problem.

from Jo York, 1913 Winthrop, Irving, Texas

I would like to state that this is my own opinion, and does not express the opinions of other breeders. . .

Several months ago we had a discussion in our club on price fixing. . . It was brought up that one of the laws of our (continued on page 7)

ALOHA FROM HAWAII

by Dorothy Gowens, Box 939, Honolulu, Hawaii

This year a package deal was offered for the Maui Kennel Club show, flying over on Saturday with the dogs, staying at a Kihei resort hotel overnight and coming back to Honolulu on Sunday night.

The Hawaiian Airlines hostess had not been told the nature of the flight and prudently stayed in the back of the plane during the entire half-hour flight, rather than try to hurdle two St. Bernards, various Shepherds and one Doberman. The smaller dogs found window seats, and we held NIELE and KEIKI on our laps. I had a paper sack ready for NIELE who usually gets car-sick, but all the dogs on the plane (about 25) behaved like veteran travellers.

We had a wagon waiting for us at the Kahului Airport and after getting lost once on the way to the Maui Lu Hotel, we found ourselves in a delightful octagonal cottage complete with refrigerator, facilities for making coffee, etc. The wall-to-wall carpeting loomed as a menace so the dogs were put in their crates during the short periods we had to leave them alone.

I was very pleased when three different Mauians recognized our breed although two of them only knew them as the "dogs that don't bark."

The show was held at Puuene Athletic Field, a lovely lush area with huge shade trees that were a godsend, considering the heat.

I realize that the way judges handle classes is as much a part of that individual's temperament and general warmth toward people as it is professionalism. Judge Vincent Perry's friendly, competent and interested attitude was a standout in my small experience with the various persons who have judged here. Naturally, I was beside myself with KEIKI'S win.

Flying back was another matter as HAL tried to cram three plane loads of dogs into two aircraft, making the situation strained to say the least. However, it was a gorgeous weekend and Frank and I were smart enough to take Monday off from work - we needed it. There is no show activity here now until the Labor Day show.

This afternoon we will go to visit the Goshorn-Tanaka dogs in quarantine and amble by the Honolulu Zoo where I read that Jack Throp's two wild dogs from Dutch Guinea have arrived and are on display.

This is to answer the many questions directed to me recently concerning my association with Ohio University for the investigation of the Basenji eye problem. Shortly before the B.C.O.A. made the final arrangements with Ohio for this eye research, I had acquired a badly afflicted red and white male Basenji that was donated by his owner/breeder for examination and test breeding purposes. This was around Christmas when I shipped this male to the Midwest at my own expense, the eventual destination was Ohio University. Unbeknownst to me, this pup was never forwarded to Ohio University after the arrangements were made, but died of an unknown poisoning.

During this time I shipped two other afflicted pups to Dr. Wyman. One pup to complete the original pair, as I was still under the impression that Dr. Wyman had received the first pup, and an extra pup was also sent. The shipping and necessary phone calls to send these two pups were paid by the B.C.O.A. The latter part of April, I called Dr. Wyman to see if he had received the pedigrees on the donated pups and learned that the female pup of the pair had died of distemper. Since he was in the process of requesting funds to support this pilot research program, he was very anxious to have a replacement female pup, and he desired the promised $75 from The Basenji Club of America be used to cover expenses to ship another female. I wrote to the B.C.O.A. requesting that this money be made available explaining that I had access to another afflicted litter that contained a female. Not wishing to retard Dr. Wyman's progress by a long wait for confirmation, I went ahead and shipped the female, accompanied by an extra litter mate.

Shortly after shipping the last two pups, Dr. Wyman sent me a letter and pamphlet describing his findings in the Basenjis he had examined. This pamphlet was designed to show the need for funds to support this project and has been submitted to the University Foundation Department for consideration. Dr. Wyman requested that the pamphlet covering his findings not be published. I will abide with Dr. Wyman's wishes however, I am sure he will not mind if I pass on the title which is: "An Inherited Ocular Defect in the Basenji Breed." In this paper, Dr. Wyman goes into some detail about his proposed breedings, genetically planned to learn the mode of inheritance. Fortunately, we are living in a computer age, and much of the information gleaned from a few breedings can be programmed in the computer for quicker results. I have requested a release of this pamphlet as it is of vital importance to all breeders. I also strongly feel that every breeder has a right to this information, not a select few. I also requested that Dr. Wyman send his findings to the Basenji Club of America.

If the University grants funds to this project, Dr. Wyman will need help. He expressed the desire that any and all information from anyone pertaining to this abnormality be sent to him. He also will be needing another afflicted female, two clean females, and a clean male for test breeding. He has promised that the results will be made available to us. This is not a problem that can be viewed with little concern by the majority of Basenjites. One has only to start researching their pedigrees and see how few dogs our breed started with. In other words, this is not a small problem concentrated in just one locale, but a national breed problem of some proportion. Perhaps you have not experienced puppies with clouded eyes yet, but who is to say you won't with the next breeding? All of us who have suffered were caught unawares. This investigation is going to bring about intensive pedigree research, and pure objectivity of cause is going to give way to accusations and

by Mrs. Joan B. Clague, 116 Des Moines Street, Ankeny, Iowa

As pyometra appears to be fairly prevalent, I felt that our experience with it might be of help to others. First of all, pyometra means "pus in the uterus" and occurs between the mating cycles.

It apparently started just after STAR'S first litter was about three months old - she showed signs of coming in heat, with the vulva swelling and a few drops of blood. Nothing else, so we assumed she wasn't coming in heat. Three weeks later, she came into the house after her morning exercise all hunched up and in great pain. I immediately called my husband to come home so we could get to the veterinarian as soon as possible. By the time he got home her temperature was up to 103 degrees and she had a very copious, odorous discharge. Our veterinarian diagnosed it as pyometra, and we debated on the pros and cons of spaying her. Since she was a champion and had just produced a nice quality litter with one outstanding male, we felt we'd like to try to have her cured.

Then started seven frustrating months. She responded beautifully to the medication - the discharge cleared up completely and the WBC (white blood count) was nearly back to normal within two months, but after she was taken off the medication, the discharge came back within a couple of weeks. It was then decided to culture the discharge (this I would advise doing immediately) and found that the original medication had taken the infection down to a minimum, another type of antibiotic (and very expensive, I might add) was needed to clear it up completely. So she was started on this and within two months was given a clean bill of health.

Our veterinarian recommended breeding STAR at her next heat, even though he felt she would not conceive, as it would clear out her reproductive system. Then she pulled her stunt of starting to come in season and changing her mind. She was given a shot to bring her all the way in, which it did. Only one problem - it was not a true heat as she would have nothing to do with BARNEY. We tried again the next morning without success. In two weeks she was back in heat, and this time was bred successfully. Nine weeks later, much to the veterinarian's surprise, she produced one pup which died six days later.

We were encouraged that she produced at all, since our veterinarian felt sure she would have a normal and healthy litter next time. The following May, STAR was her usual uncooperative self - this time she had a false pregnancy. At this time our veterinarian and several local breeders told us we were only wasting time and money on her - that she would never produce again. Since the stud owner was willing to give it another try and she was bred again in October, 1966. This time she came through nicely - four live, healthy pups with a fifth born dead as a result of a fall two days before she whelped.

Since there is a strong probability that STAR will develop pyometra again when she's 6-7 years old, we will breed her just once more and then have her spayed before we have more trouble. Was it worth all the time, money and effort? We'll see when CHEETAH hits the show ring, and in turn produces STAR'S grandchildren, also when we see STAR'S next litter. Only time will tell, but yes, I think it was.

club should be that we have a $100 minimum on all Basenji puppies. I am much opposed to this as I believe a breeder has the right to judge and price his own puppies. . .

a reasonable price. I do not claim to know all there is to know about Basenjies, but I do know a pet dog from a show dog and I have seen many Basenjies sell for $150 and more as a show and breeding dog. These dogs could not win in the show ring, and should never be bred. . . If I paid $150 for a dog and knew nothing about the breed, I surely would believe I could breed or show the dog. What are we breeding for - to help preserve the breed or to make a fast dollar? Do we really believe every Basenji born is worth $100 or more? Many breeders feel if the price is not kept high that our standards will drop. Won't our standards drop much faster if pet dogs are sold for show and breeding stock? . . .

I have a perfect Basenji. Some of you might recall the letter I wrote about the mean Basenji I had and what to do about it. Through that letter I started corresponding with a wonderful person and Basenji lover - she is Ethel Barker of Evansville, Indiana. . . After a number of letters my dog was still biting and I couldn't see putting him to sleep as he was still a pup and I felt someone with more experience could do something with him. Mrs. Barker offered to take him and she sent me one of her 4 month old pups and we can't find a thing wrong with him. . . he is very obedient from the time we got him until now at 6 months old. He will come when called, does not chew anything except his bone. . . he doesn't know what growling is. . . you can take his bone or food away from him and he only looks at you. . . He was housebroken in no time and loves everyone, especially children. . . I could go on and on about him, but mostly I wanted to say that now I know how wonderful a Basenji is and what a really good pet they are.

. . . Thank you for publishing my letter and letting me know how interested the Basenji people are in their breed. I enjoy The Basenji magazine, and will always be a Basenji lover.

"LET US BEGIN"

Right now I'm helping some local hound owners with plans to bring field trials to Alaska. Since I first fell in love with hounds generally by following them in the field, this is fun for me. How does this apply to Basenjis? Sad to say, we have no field trials - why not?

Seems to me that some of us who scream the loudest about the "natural" breed we have, and those of us who love to brag about the fabulous field exploits, should start not only the agitation, but also the work. Conformation shows are wonderful; obedience trials are terrific - I don't downgrade them one bit, but the Basenji is most attractive as a companion. I love to head for the woods, although I get far too few chances, and there is no better friend to take along than 'Senj. This is where I find the truth of what Norm Wallace told me: the Basenji that our show standard describes is also the best dog in the field.

Wouldn't you like to be able to demonstrate that the dogs we show are actually the brilliant hunters we talk about so glibly? Can you imagine the thrill of owning a Field Champion? Or better yet, a Dual Champion?

Why talk about this here? Why not ask the B. C. O. A. directors to study the problem? First, the directors have many other problems right at the moment. Second, there is no point in even bothering them unless a number of people are really interested. The project would take work - lots of it.

Writing tentative rules for field trials would take a great deal of effort. There would have to be fun trials for the purpose of working the bugs out of the rules, and there would have to be judges who knew what to look for so the scoring would be proper.

This would not be accomplished overnight. Any of you who have participated in a field trial know the amount of effort required. You don't just enter a dog in the trial. You have to have worked with the dog. The Basenji at work is truly a marvelous sight, and the first time you see your prizepup learning the ropes from an older dog is an indescribable experience.

Our goal would certainly gain the approval of B. C. O. A. president Al Braun. I'm sure he would be full of suggestions. One or two people can't do this alone, nor should it be done by one or two. We speak of making the breed more popular, nothing I can think of would attract attention more quickly than to begin field trials.

If you're interested, let's have your suggestions. I'm sure "The Basenji" will find space for them.

Yippee! Final exams are over, school's out, and summer vacation is finally here. I started back to college last semester after a six year break and it's no snap. I'm sure no grade schooler has anticipated summer vacation more eagerly than I did.

I'd like to say a warm thank you to all who expressed their sympathy on the death of GALLANT CADET OF WOZ. Even though he no longer belonged to us, we were very fond of him as he lived with us a good deal as I showed him for his owner. He had accumulated 11 points with 3 majors.

I'd like to congratulate Aubry and Patsy Griggs on their group 1st with CH. KHAJAH'S GAY FULA CADET at the Springfield, Ill. show. This is their third group win this year, I believe. Congratulations are also in order to the Robert Stimles on their new champion HENTY P'KENYA'S CHILI PIMIEN-TO.

The beautiful male ASHANTI'S EVEN BLAZE, owned by Lowell Strauss was Best of Breed over a goodly number of Specials at St. Charles, Ill. show. This boy is going places.

We have a Lady of Mystery. Her name is MISTY MISS and is owned by the Robert Koehne family who obtained her from a farm around Springfield. The Koehnes did not receive a pedigree when they bought her and we can't find anyone who knows anything about her sire, dam, or breeder. MISSY is sired by KIMME'S BLACK MAC x RENNHAUSES DE DEE, and her breeder is Jacqueline Wheeler. Anyone with any information about these dogs or Miss Wheeler, please help us clear up the mystery. Everyone agrees she's a doll, but who is she?

Things have really been hopping around our area since summer has finally come. We have been having Fun Matches every month, and even had a cook-out. Our May meeting was held at the home of Sherman and Dolores Capello and everyone brought something to eat. It was a little cool but fun just the same. After eating we had our regular meeting and discussed plans for a Puppy Sweepstakes to be held in our area in July. We are all excited about this and hopefully some of our out of town members will be able to attend. The time and place hasn't been decided, but when it is, I will let you know.

Our next meeting will be June 2, and we hope everyone in the area will attend. We now have our meetings in the auditorium of the Exchange Park Bank Building and have found this to be convenient for all of our members in the area. Try to come, our meetings are interesting and we always serve refreshments.

If anyone is interested in joining our club, let me know. We always have room for more members.

largest all-breed show-giving clubs in the nation was the excellent coverage given the Tanana Valley Kennel Club all-breed show held in Fairbanks, Alaska on the same date. There was a five column advance article shortly before the show date, where entry forms could be obtained, and the judges. This article also included an excellent section on what a dog show is, how it is run and by whom, eligibility of dogs, etc. My congratulations go to the publicity director of the Tanana Valley Kennel Club for the best coverage of a show I've ever seen.

Mrs. C. Clem, owner of CARLO OF BLUE CLOUD, C.D.X., has announced that he will be on the cover of "Chips," a national obedience training magazine. Congratulations to Mrs. Clem and "Carlo."

Sally Gifford of AVALON BASENJS informs me that they offered a male pup as the prize for the best essay on "Be Kind to Animals Week." The dog got a very good home and the breed got some good publicity. This is another idea for a placement of a puppy. Keep the ideas coming in and we'll publish them as space permits.

Some very interesting correspondence has come in on tattooing animals. Doug Wilson of BAKUBA BASENJS writes that he became interested in tattooing, but has not yet tried it on his dogs. The information he enclosed in his letter is as follows: A brochure from the "National Dog Registry," inaugurated, January 1966, suggests you tattoo your social security number in the 'right groin' of your dogs. Send this number with your name, address and phone number to "National Dog Registry," Box 55, Stanton, New Jersey 08885, with a fee of $3. You will receive a certificate of registration to acknowledge that your dog's tattoo is filed with them. All dogs owned by you may be tattooed with your "S.S." number for the same fee, and only your social security number is on file. If you sell or transfer your dog, notify the Registry. The new owner should add a letter or his initials to the dog's tattoo and re-register this new number under his name and address. The Registry will notify you when it receives word that one of your dogs has turned up and you can take the necessary steps to recover your dog. I have sent a letter to the National Dog Registry inquiring how effective the project has been in securing registrations and in recovering pets. I will pass this information on when I hear from them. I can think of many improvements in their suggested method of tattooing and eliminate the need of more than one tattoo. Mr. Wilson states that there are two suppliers in the states for tattooing equipment, and from the price list he sent, the price of a complete kit will run close to $28 and said that today's tattooing is painless and sanitary.

An article from the February-March issue of THE CONSERVATIONIST describes the use of tattooing on wild game for research purposes. A reward is paid for each animal that is properly returned and bears a tattoo. Identification materials and information should be sent by express collect to: "Big Game Project, Wildlife Research Laboratory," Delmar, New York. A battery-operated portable tattoo kit is now in action for permanent installation of identifying numbers on bears. The inside of the upper lip and the inside of the upper hind leg are the two places tattooed. The article states that the lip was chosen as it is one area easily examined at check stations, etc. The leg was chosen because the hair is thin there and the tattoo is more noticeable to the hunter.

Many thanks to all of you who inquired about our GARY and his heartworm treatments. The method used on him was a two day treatment of an arsenical compound given intravenously in fractional doses. This treatment is followed by a second, and in GARY'S case was given three months later, and he will be re-examined in six months. There was an excellent article in the May 1966 issue of "Dog World" by R. W. Kirk, DVM on heartworms and the treatment.

We have a TV star in our midst. AGENA ("Gary's" daughter) was recently used by the local kennel club to publicize our up-coming match on TV. I set her up in a show pose on a table and she held it for half an hour without even twitching a leg. A well trained puppy you say . . . thanks, but no, there was magic involved. She was fascinated with that little red light that flashes on and off when a TV camera is in use! Oh, if I only had one of those in the show ring.

To quickly dispell some incorrect rumors, my champion male, SADU'S BIG BAD JOHN, was neither hit by a car, nor poisoned. He was discontinued from the show ring, and at stud because he is an afflicted carrier of this eye disease.

A MAJOR DISEASE BREAKTHROUGH

by Marianne Svenson, 353 Bellevue Avenue, Oakland, Calif.

May I tell you a little about my background, and then my reason for writing to you?

From 1946 to 1962 I bred and exhibited Collies. My kennel was small, sometimes no more than eight mature dogs. There were usually a few boarders with us. I had several club affiliations which I enjoyed and which were helpful to me. During this time I was employed as secretary in federal hospitals and in the research department of a university. (This last I mention only because it gave me an insight into the methods of verification used in scientific research.)

While my chosen breed was Collies, the hopes of all fanciers are much alike: to produce winners, to leave our breed better than we found it, to sell healthy puppies to the best owners. Also our problems are common. The most careful of us, working with the best stock, has his heartbreaks. You may have a minimum of problems but it takes only one dead litter or one dog put to sleep to hurt badly.

When moving to California five years ago, I had to give up my hobby, but my interest remains high. When I recently came across a new research development, I wanted to know more about it. I read everything available to me in literature, reports from State Colleges, the publications from symposiums, and I tried to apply it to my personal experience. I asked Dr. H. C. Burns, a pioneer in its exploration, if I might tell dog breeders about it. Veterinarians receive information through professional channels, and newspaper and magazine releases go out to large numbers of people. But I thought of this "grass roots" approach to reach the most concerned person, the breeder. I know the breeder to be an aware person, alert to new knowledge. Through club associations, the most good could be done in the shortest time, and the individual pet owners who are in close contact with the breeder, would also become informed.

Here is a paper briefly describing this new concept in the treatment of "chronic" and "incurable" canine problems. It carries a message of hope and the sincere wish that you will introduce it at your club meetings for discussion and reprint it in your publications. Copies are yours for the asking and technical literature available for your veterinarian. If I can be of any help, I'll be glad to hear from you.

There's new hope for breeders long discouraged by

"... a Dachshund who had been treated for months with penicillin and hormonal tissue stimulant tablets with thyroid, finally stopped eating, scratched and chewed herself all night. . ."

"... a Basset Hound, unable to stand on its hind legs, radiographs revealed bilateral coxofemoral subluxation. . ."

"... 11-year old Golden Retriever with radiological evidence of hip dysplasia. Lameness and muscle atrophy was increasing even though being maintained on Butazolidin. . ."

"... 10-year old German Shepherd was presented because of inability to see. Examination showed bilateral cataracts. In the right eye, a traumatic cataract was as opaque as Italian marble, and no fundic reflex could be elicited. . ."

These symptoms that appear so diverse are all responding to the same treatment. This is more readily understood in the light of recent findings which show them to be related to a metabolic imbalance. By increasing the metabolic efficiency, a wide variety of diseases are being both alleviated and prevented. Thus far, 18 species of animals, and man, have demonstrated this faulty metabolic process, and many of their disorders are being viewed as a specific one. These range all the way from nutritional muscular dystrophy in lambs, abortions in cattle, muscle tieup in horses, to infertility in turkeys. Millions of doses have been given to livestock with effectiveness and without harmful results even on prolonged use. According to O. H. Muth, DVM Professor, Department of Veterinary Medicine, Oregon State University, millions of dollars worth of farm animals are being saved each year.

Metabolism is the flame of life. It can be likened to the flame on a gas stove. When parts of the burner are clogged, the flame becomes feeble and flickers. This poor combustion releases end products that can attack any tissue and organ in the body and produce a variety of clinical disorders depending on the organ involved. A reduced flame may cause a reproductive problem - or a muscle disease, etc.

Of course, a spark is needed to ignite a fuel. In our biochemistry there are several that are essential to maintain this flame of life. Two of them are tocopherol and a trace element, selenium.

Here is where a research breakthrough has been made. When these nutrients are used together in a certain balance, each enhances the other. Selenium becomes 7 times as effective with tocopherol and tocopherol twice as effective with selenium. It's a case of one plus one equals five! An imbalance of these causes a disturbance in normal fat, protein and calcium metabolism. Until this sparing effect of tocopherol on selenium was discovered, the veterinary profession, and even more so, the medical profession, was disturbed and influenced by "selenium toxicity." Now new knowledge is accelerating research in all phases of its use. While it may not hold all the answers, it offers much that is valuable.

On 335 dogs clinical investigation* showed 88.66% marked improvement and 6.43% slight to moderate improvement, in cases of chronic lameness due to arthritis, hip dysplasia and disc syndrome. One investigator* plainly says, "It has done a wonderful job on real bad hips from dysplasia."

*These quotes are taken from professional sources.

On the basis of the remarkable interrelationship of selenium and tocopherol, and its success with livestock in preventive treatment, there is much interest in its use on certain breeding problems in dogs.

Many stubborn eczemas are undiagnosed. Many dead litters dismissed as victims of "lethal genes." Even inability of a bitch to conceive is considered to "run in families." If "tainted blood" lines may be often and simply a metabolic disturbance which can be corrected, then there has been much

BEWARE - DOGNAPPER AT LARGE

by Jan Simpson, P. O. Box 1106, Everett, Washington

A Basenji dognapper has been reported in the North Lynnwood, Washington Area. Who could it be? After some investigation I discovered it was . . . me, Jan Simpson. I plead innocent and wish to state I was doing what any Basenji loving person would have done.

Our daughter, Christi had been alerted by her friend, Kay Linnell, about a stray female Basenji who was hanging around the Linnells' house. They had caught the dog once and had put her in their basement overnight - but alas, she got away.

To make a long story short, Kay called one day and said, "The dog is here." Off we went - me, Christi, Jim, Diane with VOODOO SAM'S leash (he's our pride and joy) and a can of food for the bait. Our party met Kay, her little brother and sister, and their pet Collie. We drove around and spotted the pretty little girl dog.

You know they say Basenjies have a suspicious nature, curious, and certainly not completely trusting a stranger. I called, whistled, sang, and coaxed - I did everything. Oh yes, I held her interest and she loved the food, but all the closer she would come was to allow me to pat her head. When the leash came near, she backed away and I wasn't going to argue the point. With gentle coaxing, we changed to a short chase around a house. The chase left me breathless, I was cold, the dog had eaten all the food, so I decided to knock on a couple of doors, explaining a lost Basenji in the neighborhood, in case someone could help.

After I was satisfied that we really had tried, we walked to the car and who should I see on a davenport watching me through the window - that delightful, loveable, stubborn Basenji. What could I do but knock on the door, who answered? The owner, of course - Bonnie Roane who had attended one of our EBC meetings. It was a most awkward moment. Me: Is this your dog? Bonnie: Yes. Me: Didn't you wonder why I was chasing your dog around your house? Bonnie: I thought it was a little strange - we had a good laugh and I went home.

I'm afraid I would have called the police had the tables been turned.

Does YOUR BASENJI RUN LOOSE? If so, watch out for Jan Simpson and her well-trained crew of dognappers.

Basenji Club of New England

YANKEE DOIN'S

by Ross Dwinells, 5 James Avenue, Natick, Massachusetts

The B. C. O. N. E. held it's Spring Fun Match at our home in Natick, Mass. on May 21st., and it was a howling (yodeling?) success. There were puppies, puppies, and more puppies - eighteen in all, and every one of them should finish their championship. A magnificent job of judging was done by Miss Elizabeth Ryder, who certainly had her work cut out for her, choosing among all those fine puppies.

There was food aplenty, the club sold hot dogs, hamburgers and coffee. The club members contributed salad and desserts which were free to all. For anyone who likes to eat as well as I do (and looks it) it was heaven.

Mr. Donald Trotter, our show chairman, Mr. Richard Gilbert, co-chairman, and Mrs. Marianne Grybinski, our president, as well as all others who helped with the hundred and one small details, are to be complimented for the total success of the match. Special compliments and thanks must go to Miss Ryder who gave up one of the few nice Sundays we've had this spring to come and judge our Basenjis.

Our Junior Handling Classes were also a great success. The Pee-Wee Handlers made up in determination their lack of handling ability, and finished up without one dog getting loose although it was a near thing at times.

Red and whites and tris appeared to be about equally divided. This indicates a definite increase in the number of tris - it also might indicate that it will be easier to finish a good tri now than has been in the past. A good deal of speculation is heard in this area about separating the colors at the shows. The opinions are about equally divided. It would be interesting to hear how people in other areas think about this.

Many shows are coming up in this area this summer, and will continue through September and we would like to see big Basenji entries. Many of the all-breed shows will be supported by the B. C. O. N. E., the next one being the Hockamock Kennel Club show at Norton, Mass. on July 1st. July 8th we will also support the Farmington, Conn. show. Our second annual meeting will be held at the Hockamock show after the Basenji judging.

unnecessary culling of valuable breeding stock. A sincere breeder does not knowingly perpetuate predisposed diseases. He is sure that culling of defective animals is necessary for the future health of his breed. But now questions are being asked:

1. Has it been proven hereditary or may it be a secondary deficiency disease?

Heart O'Northland Basenji Club

by Karen Pecore, 4619 Cedar Avenue South
Minneapolis, Minnesota 55407

Last October 29, a number of Basenji owners in the Minnesota area got together in Minneapolis to discuss the possible formation of a Minnesota area Basenji club. The idea was enthusiastically received by everyone. It was decided to establish an informal club for the present and the following officers were elected.

President: Donald Skinner; Vice president: Arlene Eske-dahl; Secretary-treasurer: Karen Pecore; Board of Directors: Edith Sach-Rowitz and Gordon Schlichting.

The following winter months were spent raising puppies and preparing for our fun match in May. A contest was run to name our club. "Heart O'Northland" was the winning entry, submitted by a junior member, Miss Lori Skinner.

Our show committee, headed by Jo Emerson worked very hard getting trophies and ribbons for every class, arranging a pot luck dinner and making the affair a huge success. Dr. N. E. Wessman of Sioux Falls, South Dakota judged an entry of 26 Basenjis, 15 of which were puppies. The winners are as follows.

1st-Puppy Dog, SOFT WIND'S FULLMOON, R. & B. Bossard.

1st-Bred by Exhibitor-Best Puppy in Match, SOFT WIND'S MOONSAIL, G. & K. Pecore.

1st-Puppy Bitch, ITURI, J. Snow.

1st in Junior Showmanship, class A, MILISSA EMERSON.

1st in Junior Showmanship, class B, JEFF INDECK.

2. Can it be prevented by treatment starting with the dam before conception even, and elevating her metabolic index?

3. If rapid growth in some large breeds causes poor utilization of nutrition, resulting in subluxation, then is the problem a situational one rather than an inherent one?

Now for the frosting on the cake.

The Boxer? "... After injection of selenium - tocopherol and home treatment with capsules, found 3 weeks later to be free of eczema for the first time and has remained so for nine months to date."

The Dachshund? "... Put on selenium-tocopherol, inflammation and scratching was reduced within 24 hours. Two months later hair was rapidly growing in, all scratching stopped and she was gaining weight."

The Basset Hound? "... The puppy was walking nine days after selenium-tocopherol therapy and the hip appeared normal radiographically at 13 months."

The Golden Retriever? "... Condition has improved considerably and maintained for 6 months without Butazolidin."

The German Shepherd? "... Within 4 months the dog was able to catch a ball, which he had been unable to do for more than a year. Maintenance dosage of selenium-tocopherol was reduced to two capsules weekly."

A TRIO OF YOUNG HOPEFULS

SPEARWOOD BEDAZZLE OF BAKUBA
(Age 5 1/2 months)

Breeders: Betty Wilson & Ragna Spears

"They call me DAZZLE; my dad is Merlea Sunshine of Spearwood (11 pts.) and my mom is Spearwood Sparkle of Bakuba. My owner says I have a proud rhythmic gait much like my grandma, Ch. Merlea Dancing Red Minx (dam of "Sparkle") and she hopes I will develop as much showmanship. Personally, I couldn't care less 'cause right now I have to investigate what BEN and BUCKY are getting into." Owner: SPEARWOOD BASENJS, Mrs. Ragna Spears, 10223 Vernlyn, San Antonio, Texas 78230.

PARVU'S EBONY IMP OF SARTARTIA
(Age 5 1/2 months)

Breeder: Mrs. Evelyn Ashford

"My name is BEN and I'm my owner's first Basenji and young hopeful. I have already won their hearts and home. They like to think that they are still boss, but of course, us Basenjis know better. When they take me out to Spearwood to practice my show manners, I enjoy the romp with the fellas most of all. My dad is Sunshine also, and my mom is Spearwood Moonlite Witchery (9 pts. both majors)." Owners: Ted and Sally Parvu, 118-A Tackney Court, San Antonio, Texas 78226

SPEARWOOD SUNI SWASHBUCKLER
(Age 5 months)

Breeder: Ragna Spears

"I'm just checking in to say I've grown since last issue and I still have my people 'hood-winked' into thinking I'm about the sweetest thing ever. I'm another Sunshine kid and my mom is Ch. Merlea Dancing Gold Sequin who thinks she owns the place. They are trying to show-train me too, and so far it's pretty good fun. I can gait like a million, but I sure get lazy during the standing part."

Owner: SPEARWOOD BASENJS, Mrs. Ragna Spears, 10223 Vernlyn, San Antonio, Texas 78230.

TAILS, CURLY AND BUSHY

by PAUL VAN ORMER
724 East Franklin, Clinton, Missouri 64735

This is about the bushy tailed squirrels, and the curly tailed Basenjis who delight in pursuing and treeing them.

Unfortunately, or perhaps I should say fortunately, we do not have the same wildlife that is found in Africa - the Leopards or the Gorillas. Therefore, it follows that if we like to use our Basenjis for hunting we have to pursue some of the lesser animals, and next to the rabbit comes the squirrel. The little sciurus comes in several varieties. Here in the Midwest we have two - the fox or red, and the grey squirrel. One preferring the upland timber and the other the river bottom timber. Either one might be termed "a natural" for the Basenji and an animal that the Basenji will pursue and tree without any training. A little praise for your dog after he has treed and a little help in showing him the squirrel is fine and best of all, is shooting the squirrel out - the Basenji will have it the second it hits the ground and give it that old Basenji shake.

After the winter months and the end of the various hunting seasons, it's spring. Everything is green, birds are back and it's a fine time to be out. A really pretty sight is a hickory grove in full flower. A squirrel hunt affords you this opportunity and if you do not think the squirrel is a sporting enough game, let me say that a young fox squirrel makes mighty fine eating.

On one occasion last summer when out with one of my Basenjis, I heard a squirrel scolding in a patch of mixed timber - oak, hickory, walnut and sycamore, so decided to try to get it. Sure enough, the Basenji found the trail on the ground, and with the surety of an old Coon Hound, proceeded to unravel it and rear up on a tree saying, "this is where it is." Now this happened to be a Jack oak, one of the twenty varieties native to Missouri, and fairly tall and while about fifteen feet from the next tree, yet the upper branches were interlaced. After much looking, in fact 'till my neck was tired, I finally decided the squirrel had traveled the branches to other trees. Sat down and after awhile the old Senj came over and joined me, so we both rested. All of a sudden he took off at a dead run like a bee had stung him and circled a tree about thirty feet away, and as the squirrel moved to watch the dog, I caught the movement and got the squirrel. Whether the Basenji heard or scented the squirrel, I know not, for they are adept at both as well as having good vision. Have seen them discern a movement two hundred feet away, and at a dead run give chase.

A squirrel that made a mistake last year was one that came out of a patch of timber and started across a three hundred foot patch of grass towards another stand of timber as I pulled in a drive. One of my Basenjis was with me, so I let him out of the car and away he went in hot pursuit of the squirrel. Oh yes, the mistake - you see there was a huge burr oak tree in the center of the clearing and the squirrel passed it up to try for the other timber - didn't make it.

A draw back to squirrel hunting is the fact that when you go after quail in the fall, the Basenji will be looking for them in trees and you just don't find too many there. However, after the first hunt he will settle down to the business at hand.

POETS' CORNER

Taku, my Basenji, and me-- no T.D.

She can trail a fast pheasant through grass and trees;
She follows an old deer track over shale and sand;
She can smell ripe garbage without even her nose in the breeze;
But when she was supposed to earn us a tracking degree --
She GOOFED IT UP . . .
Taku, my Basenji, and me -- no T.D.

We worked for a year on tracks new and tracks old;
She trailed many a stranger for half a mile thru the rough;
She tracked in the wind, in weather hot or snow cold;
But at the tracking test with a ten dollar fee;
She COULDN'T SMELL FOR BEANS . . .
Taku, my Basenji, and me -- no T.D.

We started the track as we always do;
She really got a load of the track layer's scent;
We left the first stake, on to stake number two;
But after that she wandered like a kid on a spree;
And THE WHISTLE BLEW . . . on
Taku, my Basenji, and me -- no T.D.

So back to the field - we must not rest;
We'll track and we'll trail and we'll practise some more;
We'll be ready to try at the next tracking test,
But then we'll make it to where the glove will be;
NEXT TIME WE'LL PASS. . .
Taku, my Basenji, and me -- T.D.!!

Junior Handlers

by Archie Smith, Route 2, Box 316Y

This month I received an article on Judith Ellam's problem of a fence climbing Basenji.

Diane Berry, a breeder and judge in England has three suggestions: 1. A fence or top of rather loose chicken wire.
2. If the fence is turned over on the inside so when the dog bumps into it, he can't hold on long enough to get over the top. 3. Have small laths placed about every ten feet and string wire from lath to lath with about 1-inch pipe then when the dog tries to climb over the pipe, it would roll, causing the dog to fall back.

The suggestions are illustrated
below:

Chicken wire at top of fence or wall.

Wire bent inside of fence.

Wire with pipe on them.

Mrs. Berry also wrote, "We don't do things over here quite as you do. Most owners handle their own dogs. It is unheard of to have anyone else handle unless the owner has two dogs in one class or is unable to make the show.

"Most shows can be reached in one day, and be home again.

"Also, there are very few young people in Basenjis. I think I am right in saying that my son, aged 16, is the only active exhibitor who handles my dogs, and owns an Ibizan himself.

"He handled HOBBY HORSE to Best in Match the other evening at what you call a fun match. We have all breeds at these shows, and three classes: puppy, novice, and open."

The following is an excerpt from a letter I received from the Trotters:

"So far this year, Martha Gilbert has achieved 2 first place wins in junior showmanship, open C, at New Haven, Conn., and Portsmouth, New Hampshire.
Her sister, Dale, captured a win at Cranston, R.I., and younger sister, Barbara will soon be seen in the show ring too."

BE(AU) JABBERS

Crackle, pop and then a roar -
That time is here again
When those of us who boast four feet
Search wildly for a den.

I've heard of silencers for guns;
It seems a good idea.
Let's try them out on rockets too
And make noise disappear.

Bones, mice and everything nice,
That's what little 'senjis dream of."
