COVER STORY

This month's cover picture is new CHAMPION QUEEN NEFERTITI G-JO SOWEGA, taken at St. Petersburg, Florida, June 1967, going Winners Bitch, Best of Winners, and Best of Opposite Sex, under Judge Alva Rosenberg, for her fourth major in three months. Other wins were:

BW	Columbus, Ga.	Judge Lee Murray	3 points
BOS	Tallahassee, Fla.	Judge Lee Murray	2 points
WB	Jacksonville, Fla.	Judge Fairfield Day	2 points
BOS	Daytona Beach, Fla.	Judge J. J. Duncan	2 points

BOS	Clearwater, Fla.	Judge F. F. Davis	3 points
BOS	Wilmington, N. Car.	Judge Percy Roberts	1 point
BOB	Charleston, S. Car.	Judge T. Wurmser	1 point

Her owner is Mrs. George W. (Hazel) Smoak, 1422 Pinecrest Drive, Albany, Georgia 31705. Her trainer and exclusive handler is Paul A. Saucier, of Miami, Florida.

Albany, Georgia, was the site of the filming of the full length Warner Brother's movie, "Good-bye, My Lady," the story of a Basenji bitch out-pointing a bird dog. The "Sowega" part of "NEFERTITI" name translates "Southwest Georgia" to Georgia-Florida residents.

"NEFERTITI" follows in the winning footsteps of her famous sire, CHAMPION FERUZI OF THE ZANDE, and her grandsire, renown CHAMPION REVELLE RECRUIT, top winners of 1964, 1965, and 1966. She is of the sixth generation of a pedigree of almost solid Basenji Champions.

Future plans consist of participating in the Fall-Winter shows in the Southeastern States and competing in the Westminster show in 1968.

From Francis Dalvin, 38 Windsor Road, London, England

The September number of your excellent magazine carried an article, "The Basenji in Africa" by Mrs. E. Ford. This is so full of unfounded hypothesis - not to mention downright inaccuracies that it demands to be challenged. An examination of all the doubtful issues raised by Mrs. Ford would take up too much of your space and my time, however, you may find room for the following six observations:

1) THE MAP

This is decidedly peculiar. Mrs. Ford's Tanganyika is in fact, Ethiopia; her Sudan is approximately Chad (well over a thousand miles from the source of Sudanese Basenjis); her Egypt is a strange shape comprising Egypt, Sudan and part of Libya.

2) "The Congo and the Sudan may have been the first countries visited by the white man and specimens of their dogs brought to England."

The first Basenjis to be shown in England, in 1895, came from the Congo. Then, in 1923, six were obtained from the Southern Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. Now, it must surely be agreed that all the coastal areas of Africa were "visited by the white man" well before these dates. If true Basenjis were to be found there, why were they never reported? All the earliest reports of barkless hunting dogs came from comparatively inaccessible regions of the Congo and the northeast Congo-Sudan border area. It must be assumed that, if the Basenji had ever penetrated further south and west of this area, its stock would have been so diluted by crossbreeding that it was unrecognisable as a separate breed with very marked characteristics of its own.

3) "More than likely, gifts were made of breeding pairs to neighboring African Chiefs."

There are no records of such gifts. Indeed, there is no reference to any "African" (i.e. negro) chiefs throughout the history of the ancient Egyptians. When they traded at all, they did so with civilisations, not with negro tribes, whose existence was either unknown to them, or unworthy of their notice. If such gifts had been made to anyone, surely the fruits of these gifts would be perceptible among the Mediterranean nations with whom they did trade.

4) "The Egyptians were explorers, traders and wanderers, and . . . their Basenjis would certainly have gone with their masters on their trips."

This hypothesis is ingenious but unsupported. There is, however, a theory that I have not seen put forward, which might support the presence of Basenjis, or Basenji-like crosses, in East, Central and West Africa. The slave-traders of a mere two centuries ago, trampled their way down the east coast; they might have brought Basenjis with them if they had passed through Basenji country in their line of march. This is not likely, however, since their forays took them, for the most part, well to the east of such country. The trains that crossed Africa to the west, on the other hand, passed through Basenji territory on their way to Northern Nigeria and beyond. Their cargoes of "black gold" were then dispersed to the west from the ports of West Africa. Their influence was powerful and prolonged enough, over the years, for their Muslim faith to be adopted by most of the peoples they regularly visited in their traffic, and if their faith had time to take root so successfully, their livestock might also have left more than a failing item. Moreover, since it is the glory of the Muslim to journey to Mecca as a "Hadj" at least once during his lifetime, the long, steady "caravan" of such pilgrims may yet be another path for the dissemination of the Basenji.

5) "The African male eats first, then his wife, followed by the children, and about all the poor dog gets is to lick out the cook pot."

This is less an inaccuracy than a meaningless generalization. Can Mrs. Ford really believe that such a procedure is common to all the myriad tribes and sub-tribes of Africa? There are few records of the relationship between tribesmen and Basenjis, but those we have stress the high regard in which the man holds the dog.

6) "The original Sudanese owners perhaps did not care for the black and white dogs so they were the poor unfortunates who ended up in the cooking pot."

This conjecture is nonsense. Black and white Basenjis are very highly prized, since they are considered to have magic properties (or medicine) of great value. The brindled Basenji, whose very existence appears to be denied by some self-styled "experts," is also prized, and is therefore rarely offered to an intending purchaser's view. Whether this is because of its magic worth, or because it is a more successful - and less vulnerable hunter, by reason of its "camouflage," is still a matter for investigation.

You will notice that, far from denying the possibility of the existence of Basenjis elsewhere than in the Congo and Sudan, put forth (at 4 above) a theory that could explain their presence. However, I do not know that they exist elsewhere, for nobody, so far as I know, has yet produced a photograph of a recognisable "pure" Basenji from any other place. Perhaps they are to be found as far west as Gambia, but the contention that the St. Paul River impeded their discovery in Liberia cannot be correct. B. C. O. A. WESTERN SPECIALTY - 1967

The 1967 Western Specialty was held in conjunction with the Colorado Kennel Club All-Breed show, on Sunday, September 24, with Mr. Louis Murr judging the regular classes and Mrs. Dessie Lutes judging the Puppy Sweepstakes.

A pre-show dinner was held Saturday evening at the Holiday Inn - Airport, where 65 Basenjites enjoyed a most delicious buffet dinner. A film on Crufts Dog Show, held in England, pointed out many of the differences between the American and English dog show system, provided interesting entertainment for the evening.

Basenji judging was scheduled for 8 A. M. The ring was very large and the trophy table most impressive with the numerous pieces of silver lined up, waiting to be taken home by the lucky winner. The Hi-Country Basenji Club members decorated a breed booth, which was placed a short distance from the Basenji ring. Members of the decorating committee for the booth and dinner certainly are to be congratulated on their skill and imagination in working up the decor. The miniature native village, complete with grass huts, natives, etc., that was on display attracted a good deal of attention and certainly spoke well for Jeanne Theno who created it.

There were 82 Basenjites entered in the regular classes plus 1 veteran and 4 obedience entries for a total of 87 entries representing 16 states ranging from California and Washington on the west coast to New York and Pennsylvania on the east, and Texas and Louisiana in the south, and Wyoming from the north. With 6 absentees, the final breakdown was 27 dogs, 32 bitches, 17 specials, and 1 veteran.

The Puppy Sweepstakes classes were judged first and Mrs. Lutes had an impressive entry of 15 dogs and 18 bitches anxiously awaiting her decision. Mrs. Lutes was quite thorough in her examination of each dog and her choice for Best Puppy was Mrs. Jan Magee's puppy bitch, SPEARWOOD SASHAY OF SARTARTIA (Merlea Sunshine of Spearwood x Spearwood Moonlite Witchery). This little gal has a deep red coat, an abundance of wrinkle and should mature into a lovely bitch.

The judging of the regular classes immediately followed the puppy sweepstakes. Mr. Murr was very deliberate and spent an equal amount of time with each dog before choosing the dog in each class that he felt most closely represented the breed standard. Mr. Murr chose for his Winners Dog, the open dog class winner, TAMARANGO BRIGHT ALPENGLLOW (Ch. Bwana Akers' Solemn Promise x Ch. Ringtail Yodel Lady) owned by David Seaberg. He is a very flashy dog with excellent expression and good movement. Reserve Winners Dog was SANSABRA'S BEZNEE MARTINEE, owned by Carl and Gladys Valance.

Winners Bitch, also Best of Winners, again from the open class was JOLLY RED ROBIN OF KELYN (Ch. Peregrine of Rossanty x Ch. A Black Corker of Ouimac) owned by John and Barbara Thibault. She has a lovely head, neck and topline and is nicely built. Reserve Winners Bitch was SPEARWOOD BEDAZZLE OF BAKUBA, owned by Ragna Spears.

The final moment of judging arrived when the 17 specials, one veteran and best of winners all lined up in the ring for Best of Breed. Dogs were judged first, then the bitches and after much deliberation the final nod went to CH. KHAJAH'S GAY LANCELOT (Soubrise of Horsley x Ch. Khajah's Gay Fula Charm) owned by Robert and Betty Yanowitz. LANCELOT is a real showman and deserved this fine award.

Best of Opposite Sex was awarded to the very typey, sound moving CH. FRAZEE'S FOREVER AMBER (Ch. Forrest's Charmin 'Lil Buc x Kiljongo Royal Jennifer), owned by Mrs. Catherine Frazee and expertly handled by junior Basenjite, Terri Wood.

The trophy for Highest Scoring Basenji in Obedience was won by TAMARANGO'S MERRY MISCHIEF (Ch. Bwana Akers' Solemn Promise x Khajah's Gay Dancer) bred and owned by Earl and Diane Laue.

Many of the exhibitors returned to cheer on LANCE in the group competition and this elegant showman went 4th under Judge Fairfield P. Day.

Our very special thanks go to Phyllis and Forrest Wood and their entire committee for their decorations at both the show and dinner, and to Shirley Chambers who helped organize the Puppy Sweepstakes, and to every exhibitor and breeder who attended and made it such a big success. We would also like to thank David Hill, National BCOA Specialty chairman, for travelling across the country to attend the dinner and show. We were delighted to have the opportunity to meet the organizer of our specialty shows.

LANCE also went on to place 4th in the Hound Group, under Judge F. P. Day.

BOOSTER SHOTS

For top immunity to distemper, don't forget the yearly booster shots, especially for your show dogs and the dams you plan to breed. The latter also gives the forthcoming puppies early protection against distemper. The scientists at Cornell University, are continuing their research so that some day life-long immunity may be possible. Why not give a contribution today? To - Cornell University, Ithaca, New York.

ARCTIC CAPERS

"I HAD A BALL"

And so did everyone else at the Western Specialty. If you missed it, you missed a dazzling display of fine dogs. Very few absentees from the entry of 82. A specials class that beat anything I've seen for overall high quality. Not a single Basenji acted up; they all seemed to be on their very best behavior.

Show reports are elsewhere. I'll just concentrate on the people — met some of the nicest. And renewed old acquaintances. The hospitality was superb, just as I remembered. The accommodations were good, the weatherman cooperated. And the judging — even though I didn't agree in every instance (when has that ever happened?) — was competent. I came away convinced that Mr. Louis Murr puts up the dog he feels is best, and I respect his opinion when it comes to Basenjis.

When you live a little far away, it's really nice to put a face with some of the names you've come to know. Shirley Jones, for example. What a lovely gal — too bad we didn't have more time to talk. John Brocato with the first black and white I'd ever seen. Ragna Spears appeared with some very nice dogs; Evelyn Woolery also. And the Brewers! To say nothing of Shirley Chambers.

See what I mean? The only complaint I could have about the specialty is that it just didn't last long enough for me to get around and talk to everybody. And I do love to talk, whether it's about dogs or anything else.

I've been gone from Anchorage for two weeks and it looks like another ten days before I get home again. This has been a wild year for me — seems I've been on the road almost all year. No time to spend with my own dogs. When I get back this time, however, it should be to stay awhile. No more traveling 'til January, I hope.

Have to rave about the Brewers' black and white bitch, TERRYTU'S DAWN SHADOW. Just Beautiful. Terrific coat, correct conformation, the best feet I've seen for some time. To be blunt, she could use more expression, but take a look at this one if you get the chance. I'd like a pup like this one anytime. Told Mrs. Brewer to let me know when she was bred. I like her for just what she is: a good Basenji.

I've been very curious about the "blacks" ever since I first heard about them, and people might be interested in my reaction to them.

With all the nonsense that goes around whenever anyone comes up with something a little different, I can tell you this: if you breed JUST for color, you're out of your mind. And that applies whether you have a red and white, a black and white or a tri. Some people have actually told me that they just couldn't "see" a tricolor. As far as I'm concerned, they just don't "see" any Basenji, no matter what the color.

Have one other comment. It is unfortunate that some people have chosen to appropriate the suffix "of the Congo" to their dogs' names. Even though that name is not registered with the American Kennel Club, I should think that we in this country would abstain from its use. That kennel name belongs by rights, only to Veronica Tudor-Williams. Anyone who uses it without her express permission is taking that which does not belong to them. Selah!

My many thanks once again to Earl and Diane Laue and to their many colleagues who made this specialty possible. We visitors had fun. We hope to return. In parting, I'd like to say, "Well done!"

MIDWEST FROLICS

by Cecelia Wozniak, Route 2, Ainsworth, Hobart, Indiana

Congratulations are again in order to several Midwesterners and their Basenji kids.

Yvonne Zavayna handled her beautiful homebred tri male, TI-MPINGO OF SUMA from the open class to Best of Breed and on to fourth in the group, at the Lafayette, Indiana show.

Don and May Hardin's, CH. LEAH'S BRANDY BOY won fourth in the group at Flint, Michigan, and the next day won FIRST in group at Pontiac, Michigan.

The lovely English import, ENG. and AM. CH. RINKLE-KNUT PRINCESS has added another star to her already spectacular string of achievements. Here are excerpts from a letter I received from her very proud owner, Susan Hoyne:

"JILL has done very well since arriving in this country the 17th of April. JILL, of course, is RINKLEKNUT PRINCESS. She was not shown until June and finished at Wheaton, Illinois, July 8, 1967. In August she went to the three shows at Barrie, Ontario, where she was Best of Winners the first two days, and Best of Breed the third day. This gave her a total of 9 points. On the 10th of September, she attended the second of two shows at Oakville, Ontario, where she was Best of Opposite sex to her sire, ENG. and CAN. CH. EROS OF BASENLAKE, for 3 more points. This gives her a Canadian Championship, subject to C.K.C. approval. She was also undefeated for the points in Canada.

"Needless to say, I am very pleased with her, as you know she was Best of Breed at Crufts in 1965, and also was a BEST IN SHOW winner at an all breed show in England."

All I can add to that is, "WOW."

There's a lively group in our area that meets informally at the WILLOW WEST KENNELS of Helen and Richard Butchas. Helen sends out a very chatty newsletter after each meeting and it always sounds as though they have a very good time. Last month they saw movies taken of the Basenji judging at the International - I wish I'd been there - and this month a fun match has been planned for Sunday, October 8th.

I'm closing with excerpts from another letter - this one from Miss Peggy Gillespie of Washington, D. C., about her male, GOLDEN CADET OF WOZ:

"I have a suggestion to make - in the future you should have all of your prospective Basenji buyers take an intelligence test. If they don't score near the genius level - do not sell them a pup! For the last two months that I lived in Georgia, FELLA had been getting me up around 4 A.M. to go outside. His attitude was frantic, he just couldn't wait another minute or he would have an accident in the house. So faithfully, every morning, I was getting up and taking him out. The new apartment here in D.C. has a screened balcony and is on the fourth floor. The second morning FELLA woke me at 4 A.M. asking to go out, I got up and put him on the balcony. When I arose at 7:30 and went out there, he hadn't done a thing so I took him out immediately. From that morning on, FELLA no longer awakens me until about 5 minutes before the alarm rings. It seems since I won't take him out, he no longer needs to go. Who's the dumb one? Certainly not FELLA - if I was stupid enough to fall for the trick, why not pull it? My conclusion is that he's much smarter than I am - sorry about that, and also, that he should make a tremendous obedience dog with all the brains he has."

Take heart, Peggy, you're not the first mortal to be hoodwinked by a Basenji trickster. You'll find out how really smart he is when you start obedience work.

WAGGING TALES FROM NEW YORK

by Hazel Ulm, RD 2, Winney Hill Road, Oneonta, New York

I was sound asleep when the phone rang, and it took a couple of minutes to recognize the happy voice of Bob Yanowitz on the other end, announcing that his male CH. KHAJAH'S GAY LANCELOT had gone Best of Breed at the Denver Specialty. Wonderful, especially after the win of his son, COBHAM'S SIR GAWAINE the week before at the Eastern Specialty for a 5 point major.

A sad experience for his other son, our pup, KING ARTHUR, took place at a show last month. He went into a panic while friend Herman Kingon was holding him, and we all found it hard to understand why he jumped out of Herman's arms, and in trying to grab him, Herman was bitten. It all became quite clear when I checked him over thoroughly when we got home and found that someone had been very careless and had burned ARTHUR right on his testicles! Herman healed inside of a week, but it will take ARTHUR a long time to get over his sad experience.

Arriving at the Darien, Connecticut show Sunday, we missed the handler member of the Abelson team. Surprising since Bobbi never misses a show. Seems she had no choice this time as she was rushed to the hospital and operated on for appendicitis two nights before! However, she gave Marty strict orders to get the "kids" to the show Sunday! Hurry back Bobbi, Marty's not the same without you!

The Frank Jones of Niagara Falls added a new member to their family named Gordon Frank. One baby isn't enough, they are anxiously awaiting the cooperation of their HANNA-LORE'S MERRY MOLLY so she can be bred and join the crew.

The Sackets Harbor show gave us all a nice surprise in the size of the entry - eighteen is remarkable, and it's all due to the efforts of Betty Bedore, who is bound and determined to make it a major next year. Here's wishing her luck, and a little help too.

Andy Logan of TANDA in California is visiting this part of the country for a couple of months. Unfortunately, wife Ann was unable to make it for such a long period while Andy learns about a new computer for his company, but we're all hoping she can come for the last few weeks of his stay. Andy has quite a Scottish accent and we're all just fascinated, listening to him talk.

Basenji Club of New England YANKEE DOIN'S

by guest writer, Julie Eells, 160 Oakland Street
Manchester, Connecticut 06040

I would like to know what Basenjites mean when they refer to type. It always seems abstract to me that the meaning a breeder is trying to convey when he advertises "typey pups" or an elegant moving showman with plenty of "type."

I have my own idealistic definition of what I think type should be. To me, "typiness" refers to near perfection of the breed standard. If a dog possesses nearly flawless conformation coupled with the ability to move out, I think he can be defined as "typey." Such a dog is hard to find taking the standard per se.

How many of us do rely solely on the standard as a basis for judging our dogs? Many times I have seen examples of personal preferences overruling what is specifically spelled out by the standard. This leads me to think the word "typiness" is meaningless - that it refers to only one owner's viewpoint of type. I have seen a heavy-boned, cream-colored dog who barked, referred to as "typey," apparently because he had an excellent gait and a fairly level topline.

I don't think kennel blindness is the problem. Most of us know our dogs' faults although we rightly don't go around publicizing them, unless doing so will help the entire breed as with the eye problem. But what about the cases where personal preferences override the standard? Where do we stand when one breeder specializes in heavy-set Basenjies because, "They are a hound and should be rugged enough to do the work?" Isn't heavy bone a serious fault? What is "heavy bone" anyway? There will always be arguments that a dog is not heavy-boned, just because it has more bone than a very fine specimen. Where do we draw the line? With each person having a different idea, what is happening to our beloved breed? Are we, as Bob Mankey said in "The Basenji" some months ago, just trying to preserve the breed? It seems to me that there are enough ardent devotees to ensure preservation - and promotion. With the breed's popularity increasing as it is, we have to think above mere preservation or the breed may very well turn into a degradation which would have been better left wild in the jungle. Since Basenjies are a natural breed, perfection is not the correct word to use regarding their development. Shouldn't we be striving for a universal interpretation of the standard? We already have two types emerging - the light and heavy-boned dogs. There is also the color preference and the known fact that it is more difficult to finish a tri than a red and white. I am not saying all this to criticize and condemn half the Basenji fancy, but we all have to stand together from the beginning.

It is not too early to be thinking about what happened to several other breeds, for instance, many years ago the English Setters virtually split into two different breeds - the Lavarack or "bench type" and the Llewellyn or "field type." It was maintained that the bench dogs were too large to be of great value in the field so the Llewellyn strain was bred which is smaller, lighter, and considerably faster, making showy field trial dogs. Our differences are not so vast and no one wants to separate the Basenjies into two breeds. But it is something to ponder: what are our aims and what are our dogs going to be?

Recently there was an article in a well-known dog magazine entitled, "What Judges Want." Let's change this to "What Breeders Want," and see if the results will be better. If you disagree with the present standard, then endeavor to change it, don't take it out on the breed by creating dogs to fit your personal likes, disregarding the rules set down by the B. C. O. A. To function for the betterment of society, rules must be set. To function for the betterment of humanity, they must be fol-

What "type" of Basenjies will the next decade see? Will there be a motile of individualistic interpretations of our natural breed, or will we all be striving toward an idealistic, well put together representation of the perfect Basenji?

Junior Handling Committee Report

by Donald and Wendy Trotter, 174 Central Street
Norwell, Massachusetts 02061

We have been trying to find out what you've been doing in Junior Handling with your Basenjis - but it seems that not many of you care to report your wins. We've been trying to find out some information about you so that other juniors may meet you, but not many of you have answered. We know you're out there, and active.

This year we've been trying to get an honorary honor roll started for you, and for this we need your help. We believe we now have all the bugs ironed out.

There are only two months left in 1967, and we are now ready to set up for 1968. Therefore we'd like to explain the system as it will be used - adults and juniors alike.

The Junior Handler honorary honor roll will be published in the January, April, July and October issues of both The B.C.O.A. Bulletin and The Basenji magazine. This means that the results will go to the magazines a month before publishing times. Forms will be printed in the magazines periodically, or you may send in the results on a plain post card. These we expect you to return in plenty of time, informing us of all your wins - from these returned forms we will make up the list. The final list of the year will be done with the help of our mutual and wonderful friend, Mr. Paul Nigro of Dog World. Mr. Nigro verifies who will win the B.C.O.A. Annual Award for Junior Handling. You adults can help by letting us know of juniors who are handling and actively participating.

The positions will be determined by the following: Those with the most first place wins take top honors. However, if two or three or four have the same number of first place wins, then we will further break it down as to how many wins they have in other places, for example: 3 first place wins and 1 second place win beats 3 first place wins and 3 fourth place wins.

We, Don and Wendy, firmly believe that you juniors have an interest and that you would like to participate actively in the B.C.O.A. It's up to you, we're here to help and willing to work for you.

JUNIOR HANDLING HONOR ROLL (Through September 15)

- 1) Martha Gilbert (5 first place wins)
- 2) Marsha Moore (2 first place and 1 second)
- 2) David Skinner (2 first place and 1 second)
- 3) Dale Gilbert (2 first place, 2 thirds, 1 fourth)
- 4) Ronald Goshorn (2 first place and 4 fourths)
- 5) Linda Loukota (2 first place and 1 fourth)
- 6) Allen Decker (1 first place, 2 seconds and 3 thirds)
- 7) Laura Reny (1 first place and 1 second)
- 8) Marjorie Decker (1 first, 2 thirds and 1 fourth)
- 9) Cindy Hormey (1 first and 1 fourth)
- 10) All with 1 first place win each:
Gayle Shadle, David Jordan, Laura Braudin, Marlene Brocato, Bill Boehm, Sherie Coe, Donna Goodrich, Ginene Rogler, Steve Lyon, Steve Holbrook and Terry Brewer.

There are 21 other juniors who have won lesser awards. We wish them luck in placing their names on the honor roll. This list was through the courtesy of Mr. Paul Nigro, but we must turn in the information ourselves - we can't keep asking such a busy man. Good luck, and report your wins to us, the Trotters, at the address above.

At the present, the American Kennel Club does not recognize our junior handling classes. The result of this shows in the inconsistency of classes offered and the non-publication of the results. This situation can be changed and our classes recognized from all show-giving clubs.

Everyone's help is needed - not just our parents, but ours also. Let's work together and see what we can do.

How can we help ourselves? Well, let's see!

1) Write to the A.K.C. requesting that they recognize our junior handling classes.

2) Talk to other juniors and have them write to A.K.C.

3) Request the local clubs we belong to, to write to the A.K.C. in our behalf.

Ask our parents and other adults to help us, ask them to write to A.K.C. as individuals, ask them to request the clubs they belong to, to write; ask them to ask their friends to write to the A.K.C.

With enough voices heard, we juniors will get recognized by the A.K.C. and then our classes will be run uniformly throughout all the shows in the country and our results will be published! Isn't it worth a little time and work on our parts?

Let's see what we can do!

TIPS FOR TRAINING Especially for Basenji-owned people as told to Jo Ann Weller, 6430 Estes, Arvada, Colorado

by Sally Terroux, Professional Trainer and Handler

CORRECTIONS IF NECESSARY

A major goal in training a Basenji is to PREVENT bad habits. Hopefully, you will make it impossible from the beginning for him to do it wrong, or make a mistake, so he works only knowing what's right and does it enough times so it becomes a well-formed pattern of behavior. Stop the dog from doing the thing wrong when he BEGINS to do it. Catch him the moment he STARTS to misbehave - don't wait until the deed is done and then correct him - it's too late at that point because the Basenji does not respond to corrections as do other dogs. The Basenji is more likely to resent the correction (even to the point where he will completely refuse to do the exercise regardless of what happens to him) rather than react with more effort to please you. If you get to this impasse, you generally have to go back to an early form of exercise and "guide" him with firm control into doing it right. This should be repeated until once again, doing it right, is the pattern. In a way, the Basenji's intelligence is a handicap, for he and you must see progress, but you must not progress too quickly for he may not be secure in the exercise and this may make it necessary to repeat, which is boring for both of you.

Corrections must be kept to a minimum, and once a correction is made, you should not have to repeat it. Corrections should be fewer and gradually firmer. Compromise, if necessary, to succeed, but make sure your Basenji does succeed in doing what is expected before the exercise is left. If he won't go and get the dumbbell after a number of tries and you figure it's about time to quit on that, make sure he picks it up from right in front of him, or back track the exercise until it gets so simple he does it. Then, after lots of praise (his kind) repeat the steps of the exercise until you are back where you left off with a row of successes behind. Don't let the Basenji stay at the same stage too long - if he repeats the same mistake time after time, make sure the corrections become more firm with each correction.

The nylon training collar is a tool for guiding the dog into doing what's right. It is ideally suited for making it impossible for him to err - a key to successfully training a Basenji. The nylon collar is especially effective as it is used to give a long pull rather than a sharp jerk. This is not a form of discipline but instead forcefully guides the dog into doing what you want. It prevents him from not doing what you want! The chain training collar is used for the short, sharp corrections. Start training your Basenji with the nylon collar (get one that fits closely - just barely goes over the ears) and use it for about the first six weeks. At any time later that he does not respond well to the regular chain collar, go back to the nylon collar to reestablish his attention (by making him very uncomfortable when his mind or attention wanders). Use a very light weight, quarter inch, leather or web lead and snap. Have a 4-inch handle which can be used as you start off lead work. This will be after you have had him on long and lighter cords for some time.

The less a Basenji sees a correction coming, the better. The more it can appear logical, the better. If it seems to be that the correction comes from his not paying attention, e.g., when you run into him on a left turn, he responds by paying attention. In other words, when heeling, if he forges ahead or lags, a quick right or left turn with a short, sharp jerk comes as his fault for not paying attention. Wandering attention is often a problem with the Basenji and sometimes even for the handler. A quick change of pace or direction which brings a quick correction (or in his mind, causes him to be run into or stepped on) should serve to re-focus the dog's attention on the business at hand. It is better to keep the corrections with the handler and not have an outside person do any correcting. Again, you know your dog, and you are the one who should administer corrections.

OFF LEAD

The dog that is secure and sharp in his on-lead work, tends to behave just the same off-lead. Therefore, you should follow the same sort of steps in off-lead work as you have for on-lead. However, start carefully - extend the length of the lead to six feet, then twelve, then twenty and thirty, have him drag a light line before trying the recall completely off lead, but when you DO go off lead, have confidence in him. Do your first off-lead work in a confined area (room, porch, etc.), this will again help you avoid the need for corrections - there will be no place for him to go. The positive and confident attitude of the handler is the essential ingredient in off-lead work, therefore, only when the handler has true confidence in his Basenji, should he attempt to go off lead with him. Don't run the risk of doing it too soon, it's better to delay it a couple of weeks than have to retrench because you did it too soon. Despite a high degree of confidence in your dog's readiness, however, do take the normal precaution, i.e., short strap or handle on collar, confined area, etc.

On off-lead, expect and demand the same attention as on-lead. Never act as if you have less control because the lead isn't there. The Basenji is quick to sense a helpless or less than positive approach. Remember that anytime your dog is in a confined area, you do have control, off-lead or on. If the dog does not obey, shout "NO" at any distance immediately. Walk calmly to your dog, take him by the active ring of the collar and correct gently, but firmly. Always walk, even if the dog runs away. Never run, never grab for the collar, never correct harshly when you catch the dog (it will only take longer to catch him next time). Approach him matter of factly, correct him the same way. If two off-lead corrections are necessary in one lesson, place the lead or cord back on the dog.

The way each session ends is as important as what goes on during the session. If you finish a training session by immediately taking the lead off and letting him tear around, he will probably get the idea that anytime the lead is removed,

Dan, Guerze and Toma tribes have long been comparatively easy to come by, and all these tribes inhabit the undeveloped "hinterland." On the other hand, objects from the wide Azande tribal regions of the Congo-Sudan border areas, have been brought out comparatively rarely; yet "pure" Basenjies were proven to be there long ago.

From Sharon Reny, P. O. Box 23, Chillicothe, Ill. 61523

... On the Thursday evening before the Chicago show, I sent my daughters, Laura, almost 16, and Michelle, just 14, to Chicago by train. In the baggage car were their Poodles: Olaf and Winky (both in obedience) and Phyrebug, all entered at the Great Lakes Poodle Specialty for Friday, and MAGIKGLO BA-BA BARBARA ANN, our red Basenji female, entered in the International show along with the Poodles.

They were met at the Chicago depot by my dad and went to the near north side to stay with him for the weekend.

On Friday morning about 10 A.M. my dad called and asked if they could have taken the brown dog with them that day - I proceeded to get sick to my stomach and asked if the cage was there - he said yes, upside down! I hopped the first train to Chicago with my oldest and youngest sons, leaving three more at home. . . I took one look and said, "Dad, she went through the screen." This was from an English basement, so it wasn't a bad fall, at least.

Hunted high and low all day long for her. After the kids got back from the Specialty. . . Laura and I, with two male Poodles started looking for "BOBBY." We walked in a radius of six blocks in each direction of dad's - calling and stopping - calling and listening. I haven't walked this much in years. We got back at my dad's at 3 A.M. without a trace of her.

Took Michelle to the International with the Poodles and planned to drop Laura at dad's so I could catch the 11 A.M. train back. Laura was to call the veterinarians, police, etc., when on the way back, about 12 to 16 blocks from where BOBBY got away, Laura yells, "I see her, it's a Basenji, I'm sure it's her." So dad swung the car around and there in a parking lot with negro kids was our BOBBY. They had looped a belt through her collar and were walking her and were we happy.

I had talked to the superintendent of the show and got special permission to bring the dog late, even the next day. In my opinion she wasn't show quality, but the daughter uses her in junior showmanship and does so - so with her. Anyway we turned the car around and made the International with 5 minutes to spare. I stayed 'til 3 P.M. as I had to catch the 6 o'clock train without fail.

That night my daughter called - out of a class of 10, our lost BOBBY placed second. We were thrilled. Sunday I drove back to pick up the kids and dogs. . .

We learned how to chalk the Basenji since she hadn't had her bath and Laura took her in junior showmanship. . . I believe the class (Novice B) had about 13 entries. . . and Laura and BOBBY won a first! Laura was very happy as she won the special trophy and medallion offered by the Basenji Club of America. She also had her picture taken and was very thrilled.

For a dog that isn't ring nor obedience trained and never having been allowed to run loose, we feel very fortunate that we found her in a city the size of Chicago after 26 hours, with nothing wrong with her and then place the way she did. . .

expect the results we got from our October ad. Less than one week after the ad was out, we had all the pups sold, or rather had taken reservations for them.

The amazing thing is that we also have a good possibility of placing two of our older dogs into the proper pet homes. All from one ad about the puppies.

To anyone wanting to know if The Basenji ads are worthwhile, I will give an unqualified "yes." All breeders and exhibitors know the need of a monthly breed magazine, and the necessity of it being published and received on time.

YODELS FROM THE EVERGREEN BASENJI CLUB

by Sheila H. Smith, 14944 21st Avenue S.W., Seattle, Wash.

A lot happened this summer - of course, the Top Item in this house was Yvette finishing "HATTIE" at the Seattle show. With all the "firsts" going around these days, we had to add our bit. I wasn't too pleased with the pictures of Yvette, but after racing around the ring (Gamble is one of the few who really moves his Basenjis), and crying buckets of tears, a gal can't really be expected to look gorgeous! And, of course, HATTIE uncurled her tail for her picture.

The second "happening" was JOSHUA O'TENNI finishing his Canadian Championship in a rush. Owned by Peggy and Don Murphie, "SHILOH" won a 5 point, 1 point and two 2 point wins in only five times shown so "HATTIE" and "SHILOH" get "Top Billing" in this column this month, since I bred both of them.

Now for the rest - A GROUPWINNER FOR A MEMBER! At the Wenatchee show, Judge Forrest N. Hall placed TINAS COMA LUZAMBO DARK NYMPH from Junior Puppy to BOB, and on to Group First. Owned by Norm and Mae Wallace, this was "DOTTIE'S" second time out.

KALAHARI'S GOLDEN NARNI, owned by Sally and Jerry Edinger (not E.B.C. members, but nice people, nevertheless) finished his championship at the Seattle show too, so there was lots of rejoicing in our Basenji crowd!

At the Olympic Kennel Club show in Renton, ARIA OF XANADU, owned by Caryl L. Fuchs, finished his championship. After such a long time with nothing finishing up here, it is wonderful to have some new champions! We thought the club had another one this summer at the Tacoma show when CAN. CH. TINAS COMA CARBON COPY went BOB for his second major - but the old pros, Norm and Mae, miscounted his points and "CARBIE" is still one shy. This is a shame, as he's been entered several times looking for a major, and left at home when not enough were entered.

We are very happy to hear that Joyce and Dion Mullis were transferred to Corvallis, Oregon, after their sojourn in Texas. They are bringing along CH. PONGARA OF HILLS HALF ACRE, JODION'S ADONIS, and several others, including TOOHER'S FULA M'CONGO SUNSET, who is in whelp to the black and white, CAN. CH. KATANGA'S WARLORD OF BOMAR.

We had company this summer, naturally. Oh, I know everyone has company, but with the four-legged animals around this house, things tend to get a bit hectic, especially when one's Mother-in-law has an aversion to canines, felines, dirt and dust, and in that order. Our 18 year old niece didn't seem to mind too much when she was here - she is tall, and all the dogs hitting her at once didn't knock her down completely - just brought her down to my level. One cat resides at her house, and no dog ever has; so visiting us was quite an experience. She wrote a lovely thank-you note, telling me she really didn't mind the clutter around here as it's good exercise climbing over things. The nicest thing she wrote was that she really missed the dogs, especially at night. Now that she is home she doesn't have JEREMY, SAMANTHA, TOPPER and HATTIE sleeping in the twin bed with her, she feels pretty lonesome, and she misses the midnight-to-four arguments between SAMANTHA and HATTIE, who can't stand to sleep on the same bed together.

The Mother-in-law was a bit more difficult. She slept in the same twin bed our niece had, but kept the door closed. Michelle took pity on the dogs and slept on the davenport so all of them could join her there. She was afraid they would suffer from insecurity. During those three weeks, the dogs weren't allowed on the chairs - especially in the dining room, nor on the picnic table (where I'm writing this as SAM and HATTIE (continued on page C3)

SOUTH PLAINS Basenji Club

by guest writer, Jo York, 1913 Winthrop, Irving, Texas

Dr. Joseph F. Cukjati, addressed the South Plains Basenji Club at Kirby's Charcoal Steak House, Friday evening, October 6. Dr. Cukjati's address was "Congenital eye conditions of the Basenji," and "Medical conditions peculiar to the Basenji."

Dr. Cukjati practices at Story Road Animal Hospital. He graduated from Kansas State University College of Veterinary Medicine in June 1960. He then served two years of Air Force duty at Pope AFB, North Carolina, as the Base Veterinarian. After completion of his air force tour, he was associated with Vine Veterinary Hospital at Chapel Hill, North Carolina, before coming to Irving, June 1964, where he started his own practice. Dr. Cukjati and family reside at 1609 Canyon Oaks Drive in Irving.

After Dr. Cukjati's interesting address, The South Plains Basenji Club held its business meeting. A drawing on $30 worth of liquor was held. We made $80 for the treasury on this raffle.

Then we discussed the up-coming Dallas show for November 18. We hope to see many of our out of town friends here. We will have an informal party the evening before the show and hope all those exhibiting, will come to the party. It should be fun. The party will be held at the Holiday Inn West, in Irving, hope you can all come.

Use fingernail polish remover for tar, pitch, gum, paints or varnishes from your dog's coat. It will not burn the skin as will gasoline or kerosene.

VETERINARY JOURNAL

by the Florida Veterinarians

"LEPTOSPIROSIS: FIERCE AS IT SOUNDS"

Most "germs" are rather dull looking even when viewed through an electron microscope. There is, however, a notable exception to this - a particular one belonging to the family of spirochetes. It belongs in the genus leptospira and looks as mean and vicious as the disease it produces. . . leptospirosis (lep-toe-spy-row-sis).

Leptospirosis is of great importance because it infects man and the animals he associates with: horses, cattle, dogs, cats and rats. There are two main species of the organisms of this group.

This disease is of considerable importance to dogs and cats in which it produces symptoms similar to those found in man. It is also found in rats which are considered to be the natural reservoir of infection. Both species will be treated under one heading for the purpose of discussion.

The disease in man was first noted by Dr. Weil in 1886 and was called Weil's disease. It was confused with yellow fever as late as 1928. This disease is world-wide and has received considerable attention from the World Health Organization.

Leptospirosis attacks the kidneys and if the infection is not treated early the kidneys become damaged so severely that they are unable to function. Kidney function is vital for the removal of wastes produced by the body cells. Without proper kidney function these waste materials build up in the body and death results from uremic poisoning. The body literally poisons itself.

The disease can be either acute or chronic. As it grows in the kidneys it is also shed in the urine which is the method of infection to other animals, although it is probable that some cases result from mating contact.

If the infection is present in cattle, it will be passed in the urine, washed into ponds where it can live and children who swim in the water; dogs, cats and other animals who drink the water can become infected.

The disease is most common in male dogs from two to six years of age. This is because of the sexual-social habit of male dogs to leave the odor of their presence by urinating on shrubs. Other male dogs come along and sniff the odor and contract the disease.

The disease is not as common in cats because of the habit of burying their body wastes.

The prevention of leptospirosis is primarily vaccination. The vaccine contains both species of the organism and your veterinarian will advise and recommend the proper times for vaccination. Booster shots are necessary. Dogs should be discouraged from "investigating" shrubs or hydrants when they are walked.

All dog food should be in rat-proof containers and only commercial dog food of proven cleanliness should be used. Beware of the "special deal" from an unknown dog food manufacturer. The cheapness of the food may be due to the original soiled condition of ingredients. Kennels should under all circumstances eliminate all rats. The disease is of such a serious nature that hospitalization in an isolation ward would be necessary. Serum, vaccines, antibiotics and intravenous feeding used by your veterinarian, followed by special diets can save the life of your pet, but not always. Leptospirosis is a killer. Immunization is the answer.

When it's necessary to give your dog a pill, try to put it inside a small ball of hamburger. It usually goes right down and your Basenji has an unexpected treat.

ALOHA FROM HAWAII

by Dorothy Gowens, Box 939, Honolulu, Hawaii

I have never before tried to keep an entire litter of pups until I could be sure which one or ones I wanted to keep. The pups at age three months are proving almost too much for this working woman to cope with. In between litters, I forget just how full of energy these little devils are. Beverly and Don Shurts bought the sole red and white pup, but since their home hasn't been completed, I offered to keep KAM until they can take him. Every Sunday I pack a box lunch for the pup and his folks come over from Honolulu to pick him up for the day. An extra dividend is that sometimes Bev brings me home-baked (or apartment-baked) bread.

A puppy match, benefit for the Humane Society, is slated for October 8, and I hope for a fantastic turnout of Basenji pups. After that we will look forward to an obedience match in December with five Basenjis entered in competition.

Lt. Col. Beverly Neal, who bought one of HAK TIM'S pups a year and a half ago, wanting to breed his JADOO to KEIKI. Col. Neal has decided that Basenjis have the sight and nose, the size, and the intelligence he is looking for to quail hunt in his native Georgia. So far, all attempts at breeding has failed, but at 20 days in season, JADOO is still showing bright red, and I have read that sometimes Basenjis don't reach the top of their cycle until 25 or even 28 days.

Bev Neal pig-hunted JADOO just once with a pack and said she outran the pig. When Col. Neal retires in Georgia, he should find a real meeting ground with Basenji-oriented folks.

It seems like every female Basenji in town is in season. I got a call from a stranger the other night wanting to breed to one of my males, and honestly told him I thought the market would be strained unless he already had homes lined up for the pups. I think it also sobered the man up when I told him about the shots, worming, etc. That it ran about $35 per pup, not counting food. I still have vividly in mind that little pet store pup last year who led such a wretched life until the Toths took her.

The Basenji Club of America now produces a brochure, "Publications, etc.," that tells about anything ever written about Basenjis. Available @5 for 25¢, from Mrs. Ragna Spears, 10223 Vernlyn, San Antonio, Texas 78230, or Mrs. Clara J. Bradley, 4691 North Dittmar Road, Arlington, Virginia 22207.

HERE'S TO THE DOG

Here's to the dog in all his splendor
Things wouldn't be the same
If you changed his gender.

He rips and he snorts, growls and hisses
The girls flock around to get all his kisses.

He struts and he scratches
And hydrates the fences.
To all but his master,
He's awfully offensive.

this is the thing to do. It is better to make a point of removing both collar and lead, perhaps shifting to the collar he associates with play time. Watch the kinds of patterns and habits which you establish.

If you plan to enter competition, or in any instance, move quickly during training sessions. Take short, brisk steps, make sharp right and left turns — keep the Basenji moving fast on the recall — don't give him time to think! If you move quickly, he will tend to move with you since you don't give him time to figure out that he might prefer doing something other than what you want him to do.

IN SUMMARY

A Basenji is different from other dogs in many ways. These differences can be an intriguing, though challenging asset to you if you learn to understand the "hows" and "whys" of your Basenji's reactions. He understands and reads you better than you may realize — spend some time learning to understand and read him — it will be time well spent.

SO: Learn to know your Basenji as well as he knows you.

Praise him according to his individual likes, know what your dog considers praise.

Prevention is the best training technique you can use with a Basenji.

Corrections must be logical and judiciously employed. Persistence is an essential pre-requisite for anyone training a Basenji.

Plan now to train your Basenji and begin building confidence in yourself and your dog. The process can be fun, and the result is a most rewarding partnership.

Your suggestions and comments regarding these "tips" will be appreciated. Send them to Jo Ann Weller, 6430 Estes, Arvada, Colorado 80002.

SOUTHERN AIRS

by Joyce Mullis, 323 Tasasco, San Antonio, Texas 78226

This month's article will be a tribute to the breeders and Basenji lovers of Texas. A fond farewell to them all with the sincere hope that we will again have the chance to live among them.

We have not allowed ourselves to think of the day we will leave for Oregon. Our memories will be of your rapid acceptance of our family and your grand sense of humor, your team spirit and your famous Texas cook-outs.

Harry and Ruth Polonius (CINNABAR) hold a special memory for their constant companionship. A better Basenji spirit could not be found that would surpass these two. The long nightly conversations will long be remembered.

Dorothy Wease (DAEFONWALD), a great personality with an ever ready smile, will be remembered for all the work she has put in on her chart on "RUSTY," going way back to the original Basenjis.

Betsy Moerner (TAYHAS), for her good heartedness and great Texas cookin'. Her hot pepper salads are only surpassed by her love of the puppies.

Barbara Shearer (ORION) and Delma "Peto" (DELL) Smith have to go hand in hand in memory for their hospitality and beautiful home. For theirs, indeed, is an unusual kennel of American, Canadian and Mexican champions. Both are great conversationalists.

Ragna Spears (SPEARWOOD) will be remembered for her exhausting trips to the coast with dams and pups in tow. For her outstanding sense of competition and sportsmanship.

Pat Riley who is endowed by the gods with a big heart which is only added to by the presence of her husband Mal. Their little SHADY LADY is a gal to watch.

Jo and Shane York (SHAJO) will go in memory for their enthusiasm and with three little ones to care for, that isn't always easy.

Sally Parview, a newcomer, with her tri boy BEN to whom I wish all that is good in the dog world.

Evelyn Ashford (SARTARTIA), a great lady and the keeper of us all. Without her a gathering would have been incomplete. Her love for her Basenjis goes without description and with great understanding.

To them all, farewell, and thanks for the memories.

POETS' CORNER

SHE AND I

She insists she doesn't need to go outside.
I, against my better judgement, concede.
We crawl into bed and to sleep,
She and I.
3:30 A.M.
She jumps off bed and paces room; scratches on the door.
I try to ignore her.
She paces room and scratches on the door.
I, grumbling, find one slipper,
Retrieve the other from under the bed.
Stub toe against a chair - put SHE out.
Would sell her for two wooden nickels.
My Elkhound doesn't go out at unchristian hours.
She comes in.
I promise to ignore her.
She jumps on bed and demurely waits
For me as I climb into bed.
She looks at me with round-eyed innocence;
"Are you mad at me?"
I surrender, pat her head and give a hug.
She curls against me and with contented sigh is asleep.
I turn out the light and wide awake stare at the ceiling.
Whee, Basenjis!
Sell her? No, never!
I lay next to her soft, warm body and with contented sigh;
We sleep - She and I.

lie sprawled here in the sun), but the hardest job we had the entire summer was pretending that JUNIOR, the cat, NEVER got on the kitchen counters. Where else can we feed him so the dogs won't steal his food right out of his mouth? In addition to his regular food, we also keep dry kibbles for him on top of the birdseye maple dresser in the upstairs hall. Yvette said her grandmother appeared in the bedroom doorway one morning with a bowl in her hands and said, "What is this stuff in this beautiful antique cut glass bowl?" Nonchalantly, Yvette answered, "Junior's food. We keep it on the dresser so the dogs can't reach it." Grandmother: "But why in a cut glass bowl?" Yvette: "Mother thinks it's pretty." No more comment from Grandma. She didn't even say a word when I tell the dogs to ask Daddy to let them out, meaning her son, of course. It shows she's a woman of strong character. Just think - three whole weeks to put up with the Smiths.

NEW A.K.C. RULES

Effective September 12, 1967, dogs which, according to their owner's records have completed the requirements for a championship, but whose championships are unconfirmed by AKC, may be entered and shown in the "Specials" class for a period of 90 days from the date of the show where, according to the owner's records, the requirements for a championship were completed.

The dog's name on the entry form should not include the prefix "Champion" unless the championship has been confirmed by AKC.

Further, no points will accrue to a dog that is entered and shown in "Specials" as an unconfirmed champion. If through error in the owner's records it is determined that additional points are needed, the dog must be returned to regular class competition.

BE(AU) JABBERS

November's wind can't find me now
If I stay in my house.
It can't hurt me no matter how
It may complain and grouse.

Let dogs pull sleds and hunt the duck
And herd their silly sheep -
While they do that, I'll keep my luck
And sleep - and sleep - and sleep.

- - - Carolyn Forse

Now I lay me down to sleep,
I've earned my board and earned my keep.
I've played with pups, chased birds around
I've played and chased 'til I'm run down.

BOOKS FOR YOUR LIBRARY

Long out of print, "The Inheritance of Coat Color in Dogs" by Dr. Clarence C. Little, this valuable breeders' aid is regarded as the authoritative work on the subject. It covers in detail genetic background and the basic coat-color genes of the dog, with revealing information on the various pigmentations. The book gives many tables showing the results of matings involving specific genes and the resulting colors. Dr. Little gives the genetic analysis for 86 different breeds to guide their fanciers in breeding programs.

Howell Book House Inc., now has world publishing rights to this classic, which will be available at $7.95 at the better stocked book shops, pet shops, dog book distributors at shows, and through Howell direct at 845 Third Avenue, New York, New York 10022.

And there's a new book for children up to ten years old, entitled, "CHAD," a story about a Basenji. It is published in England and we are trying to import some for resale. The price will be around $2.50, and will probably be available in about six weeks. Watch for advertisement in next month's The Basenji.
